Second Soviet wheat deal announced today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirmation of another U.S.-Soviet wheat deal was announced today by the Agriculture Department, bringing to 3.2 million tons the total amount of wheat officially sold to the Russians this year.

At the same time, the Canadian Wheat Board announced the sale of two million long tons of wheat, approximately 74.6 million bushels, to the Soviet Union.

The USDA has said the Russian purchases from the Americans, amounting to about 118 million bushels, will have little effect on food prices at U.S. supermarket levels.

The department said Wednesday that Cook Industries Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., has sold two million metric tons and Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis said it was completing arrangements to sell another 1.2 million tons.

The department's formal announcement today said that 1.2 million tons had been sold to the Russians but did not identify the seller. However, a department spokesman said it was Cargill.

There were unconfirmed rumors of additional deals involving wheat and other grains. One exporter, Bunge Corp. of New York, said, "We have been in conversation with them (the Russians), but nothing has jelled."

It was unknown what the Soviets were paying for the wheat, but both transactions would be valued at a total of $475 million at the current wheat price of about $147 a ton. The Cook contract would be worth $300 million and the Cargill transaction $175.

"Several companies are still involved in negotiation" with the Russians, said Richard E. Bell, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture.

Cargill said its Tradex subsidiary in Geneva, Switzerland, was contracting with the Soviets for U.S. hard winter wheat, some of it in the summer of 1976. "Cargill expects to complete contractual arrangements within the next 24 hours to supply U.S. wheat to fill this sale," a company spokesman said.

An official of Continental Grain Co. of New York City, another top exporter, declined to discuss possible negotiations. "We keep in communication, that's all I can say," said Clarence D. Palmby, a Continental vice president.

The announcements came after more than a week of rumors that Russia was interested in buying substantial quantities of grain from the United States and Canada. Three years ago the Russians bought during secret negotiations about 11 million tons of U.S. wheat, equal to about one-fourth of the 1972 U.S. crop.

Those sales depleted American stocks and led to subsequent domestic price increases for meat and dairy products.

This year, the Agriculture Department says sales to the Russians will have little inflationary impact on the American consumer's food bill. The department has projected a record grain harvest and says this will increase U.S. grain stocks even with large-scale sales to the Soviets.

Rail negotiations end, strike looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad labor negotiations collapsed today and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks predicted there would be a strike but postponed the deadline until July 28.

No settlement was in sight either in the Postal Service talks.

Negotiators for the railway clerks and the nation's major railroad had been reported near agreement for hours. Shortly before 1 p.m. union President C. L. Dennis said that while the issues "had been narrowed to a virtual agreement" the railroad management would not "even agree to a few small items" that would have concluded a settlement.

The 117,000-member union had set a strike deadline of 12:01 a.m. Monday, but Dennis said he agreed to postpone the walkout at the request of W. J. Usery Jr., the chief federal mediator.

Dennis told newsmen the final issues standing in the way of an agreement involved cost-of-living wage increases, vacations for low seniority workers and adjustments in health and welfare benefits.

Otherwise, he indicated the 117,000-member union was prepared to embrace basically the same three-year "pattern" agreement signed earlier by several other railway unions which provided for a 41 per cent hike in wages and benefits.

The Ford administration urged the negotiators to reach a settlement by midweek or face the prospect of congressional intervention in the dispute.

The union had set a deadline of 12:01 a.m. Monday for a nationwide strike.

Federal mediators were anxious to resolve the railroad dispute in order to devote full attention to negotiations for 600,000 postal workers whose contract expires at midnight Sunday. The postal workers also have threatened to walk out at that time.

Usery, who held a private four-hour meeting Wednesday with Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, said today's session "would be one of the most serious" in the postal negotiations which began in mid-April.

Today "will determine whether the pieces go together," Usery added. "I hope they will."

The chief postal negotiator, Darrell Brown, said that while "some very critical issues remain," he was hopeful of reaching "a mutually satisfactory agreement with the four unions representing letter carriers, clerks and mail handlers.

Burning smell reported on board Apollo-Soyuz crafts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The American Apollo and Soviet Soyuz ships linked in orbit today and, after a brief scare from a burning odor, the commanders of the two spacecraft prepared for their long-awaited "handshake in space."

The odor, which sent the astronauts scurrying for oxygen masks, flooded the cabin when they opened a hatch on a tunnel connecting the two ships.

They quickly diagnosed that it came from a furnace in the tunnel connecting Apollo and Soyuz. A sample for a metals-making experiment had been heating in the furnace, and Houston Mission Control theorized that odor had accumulated in the 4½ hours since the astronauts had sealed the hatch on the Apollo end in preparation for the docking.

"There is no problem," the control center reported an hour after the smell had worried astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton.

Commander Stafford, after assessing the situation, assured the Soviet commander by radio: "We have a little problem. I think we have somewhat of a bad atmosphere here. I think soon that we will no longer have any problems."

Stafford and Leonov proceeded with plans to meet one another in the tunnel for an exchange of greetings and flags.

The Soviet commander, Alexei Leonov, also reported that "some of your bad atmosphere" has seeped into the Soyuz.

Just before the Apollo sped out of radio contact with the ground, Stafford reported, "The smell has dropped and is not bad any more."

Stafford also reported that they had smelled the same odor in the vehicle two days ago, but it was not as bad then.

"Let's cross our fingers for a minute," Stafford said. "We've got some oxygen masks standing on so we can put them on. No sweat."

If there is no problem, Stafford and Leonov were prepared to enter the tunnel later in the afternoon for their long-awaited "handshake in space."

The ships executed the first ever linkup of American and Soviet space vehicles at 11:09 a.m. EDT, and American commander Thomas P. Stafford shouted "We have succeeded!"

His enthusiasm quickly shifted to caution when the crew reported what Stafford described as a "weird smell."

"It smells like cordite," he reported. Cordite is an ingredient in gunpowder.

Mission Control officials said it was too soon to tell what the burning meant or how serious it was.

Stafford said they first noticed the smell when astronaut Donald K. Slayton opened a hatch leading into a connecting tunnel between the two spacecraft.

"Vance and I got it right in our face," the commander said. Shortly afterwards he said the smell seemed to have dissipated a bit, but Houston Mission Control advised that at least one of the crewmen don an oxygen mask as a precaution.

Houston Control advised the astronauts to delay the atmosphere mixing procedures intended to precede a transfer by Stafford and Slayton through the tunnel into the Soyuz vehicle to visit cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov.

Apollo and Soyuz came together 140 miles above Europe, climaxing two days of orbital pursuit during which Stafford, Slayton and Vance Brand skillfully guided Apollo as the hunter-craft.

The maneuvers had been precise, and when the two mission control centers, in Houston and Moscow, gave the go-ahead to dock, the Apollo moved right in on Soyuz.

Television viewers on earth had a dramatic ringside seat as a camera pointed out the Apollo window showed the Soyuz against a brilliant blue earth horizon.

Slowly, Apollo slipped below the Russian vehicle and then moved in. The picture showed a slight shaking of the Soyuz as the ships linked.

"We have succeeded," the American commander, Stafford, exclaimed.

His Russian counterpart, Alexei Leonov, said: "Soyuz and Apollo are shaking hands now." He spoke in English.

"We agree," Stafford returned.

"Tell Professor Bushuyev we had a soft dock," Leonov then radioed Moscow Control.

Dr. Konstantin Bushuyev is technical director of the Apollo-Soyuz project for Russia.

About three hours after docking, Leonov and Stafford, the two commanders, scheduled the long-awaited "handshake in space" in a connecting tunnel between the two craft.

It will be a symbolic and emotional moment for these two space veterans who have become fast friends during two years of training.

They'll exchange greetings and their nation's flags and Leonov is to present Stafford with a United Nations flag to carry back to earth. Stafford and Slayton then move into the Soyuz for the first of four crew transfers planned in the two days of linkup.

The cosmonauts had decorated their cabin with welcome messages for their American visitors.

During the morning the Apollo astronauts steered their ship through five course corrections as they gradually and smoothly moved in on the Soyuz.

When the spacemen awakened this morning they were more than 500 miles apart, but the Apollo maneuvers closed the gap between the American spacecraft and Soyuz.

Nearly four hours before the planned latchup, the astronauts spotted the Soyuz as a speck in the sky and established radio contact with the Russian spacemen.

Government figures show economy has stabilized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that the nation's economic output slipped fractionally over the second three months of this year, indicating the economy has stabilized after the longest and deepest recession since World War II.

The Commerce Department said the volume of the Gross National Product, which is the nation's total production of goods and services, dropped during the quarter by an amount which when projected over an entire year would equal three-tenths of one per cent.

It was the sixth straight quarterly decline in volume of Gross National Product, or GNP. But it was the smallest of the six and compared to a decline at an annual rate of 11.4 per cent in the first three months of the year.

Over-all, total economic output had declined 7.8 per cent since the start of the recession.

The Commerce Department also reported that the inflation rate fell to an annual rate of 5.1 per cent, the lowest since the 4.1 per cent rate during the final three months of 1972.

Inflation as measured in the GNP accounts, which covers a broader range of goods and services than are included in the more familiar Consumer Price Index, was 10.3 per cent for all of 1974 and 8.4 per cent at an annual rate in the first quarter.

The reduced inflation rate, combined with virtually stable output, resulted in the first advance in nearly two years in the per capita after-tax income of Americans after adjustment of the erosion of inflation.

Per capita real disposable income advanced $133 during the quarter to $2,908. That figure had not increased since reaching $2,952 in the third quarter of 1973. The result of the increase was that Americans saved an estimated 10.6 per cent of their after-tax income, most since an identical rate in the second quarter of 1946.

The GNP report showed that a major factor in the increase in after-tax income was the tax benefits and special Social Security payments during the quarter.

Disposable personal income increased $63.3 billion at an annual rate, with the combined tax cuts, rebates and Social Security payments accounting for $42.2 billion of that total.

Personal savings provide the basic pool of money for investment in expansion of productive capacity resulting in new jobs. Increase in personal savings also provide a base for stepped-up consumer demand in the months ahead.

The performance of the GNP accounts had been anticipated by administration economists who had been watching the month-by-month figures on consumer spending, reduction of business inventories and industrial output. The small negative decline in the volume of output, combined with other statistics, indicates the economy was still declining early in the quarter but rallied modestly at the end.

The market value of GNP rose at an annual rate of 4.8 per cent in the second quarter, reversing the first quarter drop of 3.9 per cent and pushing total output to $1,433.4 billion at an annual rate.

The physical volume of GNP is arrived at by reducing the market value to account for inflation, and it was this adjustment which resulted in the slight drop in so-called "real" GNP.

In addition to being the deepest recession since World War II, surpassing the 3.9 per cent drop in real GNP during the 1957-58 recession, the latest slump was also the longest. The starting date has been tentatively at November, 1973, the date of the Arab oil embargo.

Despite the improved outlook for the economy in the latest statistics, administration economists expect it will be late this year before the recovery becomes strong enough to reduce unemployment below the current 8.9 per cent.

Mediator called in on stalled teacher contracts

By BILL SHAW

Dixon School Board President James Dixon reported to the board Wednesday night that a federal mediator has been selected in attempts to set salary levels for instructors next year.

Lew Moore of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is scheduled to meet with the board's negotiating team and five representatives of the Dixon Teachers Association Aug. 4.

An impasse was reached last month in the teacher negotiations. The teacher group is reportedly seeking a boost in their base pay, to $9,600 from the present $9,100.

Stanley Weber, school superintendent, presented information regarding secretarial salaries in nearby schools. A group of Dixon High School secretaries request higher salaries at the June 18 meeting.

Board member Jim Greenlee noted, from the figures, that Dixon's system seemed to have "too big a spread between the lowest and highest paid secretaries." Dixon's lowest paid secretaries are paid 22 per cent less than the average of the schools surveyed, while the highest paid receive 10 per cent more than the average. "This seems inequitable," Greenlee said. He suggested that definitive job descriptions of each position are needed in order to compare the salary scales of various systems.

Board President James Dixon commented that it would be hard to determine a scale because each secretary's job varies.

Weber mentioned that action being taken by Gov. Daniel Walker might cut state funds to the school system by five per cent. Weber wasn't sure exactly how that might affect the budget.

A letter from Harold P. Seamon, executive director of the Illinois Association of School Boards, informed the board that legislation is pending which would deprive state school boards of their power to dismiss tenure teachers. The board followed the ISBA recommendation by voting to send a letter to Governor Walker urging him to veto the measure.

Wilbur Stitzel Jr., assistant superintendent, finance, reported that group insurance rates for employees was to increase. Individual coverage from Golden Rule Ins. Co. will be up to $15.64 per month from $12, while family rates are to go from $32 to $41 monthly. Stitzel was asked to check into the matter.

Reluctancy on the part of contractors to submit detailed plans on athletic field renovations was brought to the attention of the board. "The board must indicate financial commitments before much gets done," Dixon reported. Rough estimates will be sought from a general plan in order to determine what will be spent.

A report on renovation of the north section of bleachers at Bowers Field was reviewed. Dixon indicated that the bleachers need not be removed, just repaired. The wood seating and footboards were identified as the primary items in need of replacement. It was decided to seek cost estimates of supplies for bleacher repair. The board is hoping for volunteer work to carry out the repairs. No hope was given for opening of the north bleachers for the 1975 football season. The board voted to close the bleachers and make other provisions for the loss in seating.

Other building and maintenance work faced postponement. Bids for blacktopping roads at Madison, Jefferson, and the high school were rejected. Revisions in the high school girl's locker room will be reconsidered next year. Replastering the ceiling in the boy's locker-shower area was indefinitely postponed, as were further changes in the library area.

A resolution was passed for authorizing purchases by the board at discount prices through the state Department of General Services. An $11,000 multigraph printing press is to be bought in this fashion.

Arnold Butterbaugh brought the sale of his bus contracts to Kankakee Auto Leasing to the board for approval. He cited his accident in May, 1974, when a bridge collapsed in front of him plus the increase in capital required to carry on as reasons for the sale.

Earl McComb, a representative of the firm which handles bus contracts in Kankakee, Bloomington, Decatur, and Bloomington, Minn., stated that he required the board to adopt a protection clause on increasing gasoline prices before he could accept the contract. Stitzel pointed out that any price adjustments would terminate the contract, according to present board policy. The board decided to place the contract up for bids.

Dixon noted that "they (busing concerns) are in a tough position with the changing cost of gas." Butterbaugh informed the board that sale of his business was contingent upon the contract being awarded to the Kankakee firm. In any event, Mr. and Mrs. Butterbaugh will remain actively involved in the business.

The board approved the hiring of Jerry Bunt, 33, as head of the guidance program at the high school. Bunt is presently guidance counselor and adult education director at Walnut High School. According to Weber, Bunt is highly regarded in the Walnut community, with excellent ability to deal with college-bound students as well as those who are vocationally oriented. He will be receiving a salary of more than $19,000 under an 11-month contract.

In other board action, application was submitted for $16,861 in additional Title I funds for remedial reading programs which are now taking place at Lincoln and Madison Schools. The funds, if approved, would be used for remodeling and addition of a teacher to the staff.

—a recommendation by Weber to approve a contract for computerized grade reporting was rejected. The cost would have been $2,900 yearly and saved paperwork for teachers and secretaries.

—approved Sam Applebaum for the position of head swimming coach to replace Bill Lovaas at DHS.

—accepted the resignation of Kathy Crawford, the newly appointed special education instructor.

—approved bids totaling $14,485 for equipment.

KGB monitors phone calls

The Soviet KGB listens to thousands of American businessmen's and politicians' phone calls.

The electronic equipment in the Washington Russian Embassy, and in their other places of business throughout America, monitors so many personal conversations they have to send the messages to Moscow to have them interpreted, then returned to KGB agents in the United States, who use the information to blackmail the Americans into complying with the communist requests.

The U.S. agents have been secretly monitoring the communists until Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's commission blew the lid off information, now we are lost.

The July 12, 1975 issue of Human Events, 422 First Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003, carried an interesting news item on this, along with many other important happenings that you would be interested in learning.

Human Events describes millions of illegal aliens who take jobs from our own workers, or federal control of local schools, how your senators and representatives vote on various laws, what the United Nations is doing to America.

Message from Mao: U.S. stay in Asia

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)— Mao Tse-tung is now engaged in an all-out effort to get the United States and West Europe to snatch his chestnuts out of the fire.

He's intent on selling the United States on keeping a strong enough force in the waters off Southeast Asia and a sufficient diplomatic and economic presence to blunt Russian expansion. He has an abiding fear of Soviet encirclement, which seems high on the list of Kremlin aims. And Mao also hopes, through a continued United States presence, to keep the door open for the building of a more effective Chinese-sponsored underground in Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore and the Philippines.

It is clear that after Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia, Mao is not worried that American operations in Asia will be any bar to the particular brand of underground subversion and guerrilla warfare in which he has proven his technical genius. On the contrary, a buildup of Russian-backed parties, as has occurred in Latin America, Africa and in South Asia, could prove a hard-to-beat combination.

Mao's stay-in-Asia messages to the United States come in the form of covert hints to sources close to American diplomatic circles. Mao has learned, by careful observation, that U.S. foreign service officers, the State Department hierarchy and selected influential academic leaders jump much more quickly to the bait when the hints are indirect, channeled confidentially through men with "inside contacts."

The Chinese have also let it be known in Japan, again "secretly" but taking care to make certain the secret is spread, that they are not seeking to end the alliance that country has with the United States. As has been well reported, they confidentially told President Marcos of the Philippines they had no objection to American bases in his country. Mao's men have also hinted strongly they are in no hurry to acquire Taiwan, now governed by Chiang Kai-shek's successors.

The United States is not Mao's only target. He's been slyly active these past months in inviting a bevy of West European leaders to China, giving them red carpet treatment, having his men suggest to these Westerners that Europe, not China, is Brezhnev's target.

There has been a veritable parade of West Germans. Again and again, with infinite patience, Mao's aides drum on the theme that the Kremlin is making a feint to the East, against China, only to bemuse and distract West Europe. Once Britain, France and West Germany relax, the story runs, the Russians will move in.

Premier Chou En-lai tells the Europeans they must strengthen themselves economically, politically and militarily. Teng Hsiao-ping indirectly urges the British to stay in the Common Market. The Chinese pull no punches in deriding the naivete of those European leaders who believe in promoting friendship with Russia and who work actively for detente.

Mao's hope, of course, is that a financially strong, united, militarily effective West Europe, reaching out politically and economically to East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Rumania, will keep Leonid Brezhnev and his Kremlin Colleagues so occupied in the West that Mao and associates will be free to follow their aims in Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and Asia.

If there's to be conflict, the Chinese strategy runs, let it be between the superpowers and their Western allies, leaving Peking free to pick up the pieces.

Communism progressing everywhere

By JOHN F. McMANUS
BELMONT, Mass.— For too many years it has been considered socially unacceptable and even professionally risky to worry out loud about Communism. Today, however, what jeopardy may have existed for an outspoken anti-Communist ought to be a thing of the past, for the Reds are piling up victories everywhere.

Portugal: Early in 1974, a military coup toppled the anti-Communist government of Portugal, formerly one of the two or three most determined anti-Communist nations on earth, and things have progressed leftward at a dizzying pace since then.

During the past few months, the admittedly pro-Communist military rulers have crushed a pitiful attempt to unseat them; President Spinoza was forced to flee; leading citizens were arrested; a heavily Communist-dominated cabinet was appointed; banks and insurance companies were nationalized; rival political parties were outlawed; and the press became totally Red. The fall of Portugal has greatly increased pressure on neighboring Spain, a long-time target of Communist designs.

Greece: Late in April, the new pro-Communist government in Greece made its leap to the left obvious when it ordered the U.S. Sixth Fleet out of home port facilities near Athens. As a result, the conversion of the Mediterranean Sea into a Red lake moved ominously closer to total reality.

Southeast Asia: Also at the end of April, the world witnessed the victory of Communism in South Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia. Americans were told by their President not to blame anyone for this overwhelming setback. But while some will continue to bury their heads in sand provided by the Administration, this remarkable Communist triumph certainly boosted the morale and determination of Reds everywhere.

Thailand and The Philippines: Assurances that the fall of Indochina would not produce a domino effect have been quickly proven false. Five days after the fall of South Vietnam, the United States was told to cut back its military presence in Thailand. During the celebrated Mayaguez incident, the Thai government angrily protested use of its soil by U.S. Marines.

On June 10, American newspapers carried the chilling news that our once-solid ally, the Philippines, had broken diplomatic ties with Taiwan and opened them with Peking. Another domino had been pushed to the left.

Italy: On June 17, we awoke to learn that the Italian Communist Party had just scored tremendous gains in the nation's elections. Almost unqualified victors, the Communists can now be expected to wield near total control through a coalition with their left-wing allies, the Marxist Socialists.

Mozambique: Formerly an integral part of anti-Communist Portugal, Mozambique was granted independence on June 25 by Lisbon's Red leaders. The new nation's first President, Samora Moises Machel, is a 10-year veteran of Frelimo, the terrorist group supported for a decade by Red China and the Soviet Union. He has vowed to make Mozambique a "truly Marxist state."

Meanwhile, Henry Kissinger is trying to give the Panama Canal to the Marxists in Panama; Spanish leftists eagerly await the death of Franco; and the leaders of Australia and New Zealand are pushing their nations leftward at an alarming pace. At home, socialist big government continues to grow and our leaders insist on financing and sustaining Communists all over the globe. If the United States is not to be the final domino, the American people had better realize that we have been losing badly, and then get to work to reverse the trend.

REFLECTIONS— One oil price reduction does not mean we are going to escape higher gasoline costs but it is better than a reported price hike.

Ecuador, one of the Oil Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) last week reduced tax on oil exported which is expected to decrease the cost by 3 to 4 per cent to importing countries.

The primary market for Ecuadorian oil is the Caribbean, Central and North American west coasts.

Ecuador recorded trade deficits in the third quarter of 1974 and the tax reduction is apparently a move to attempt to increase oil exports.

The action by Ecuador is the first price reduction by an OPEC member since their joint raising of taxes and royalties in October 1973.

Ecuador is a minor OPEC member but its action which surfaced points to difficulties experienced by other members which are threats to the cohesion of the oil-pricing cartel and about the success of the OPEC's announced intention to raise prices in October.

Iraq is seeking to borrow $500 million over the next five years from a syndicate headed by the Union of Arabic and French Banks. The same bank has been asked to lend Oman $100 million over the next five years.

Algeria needs $1 billion in medium-term loans by the end of this year and last month raised about $135 million from abroad.

Indonesia's government-owned mining and oil corporation, Pertamina, is negotiating with Western money markets, the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank and other OPEC members to consolidate its foreign debts which total about $2.5 million.

Venezuela has announced it expects a 20 per cent reduction in the country's oil revenues for the second half of this year.

And Iran, where in May, oil output was down 20 per cent has announced plans to scale down its five-year development plan goals.

We are continually warned it is futile to seek relief from the onslaught of upward trends in the price of fossil fuels by looking closely at OPEC situation hoping to find some weakness which will cause them to relent and lower the price of oil.

As everyone knows since later in 1973 OPEC oil has quadrupled in price and now costs about $11 per barrel.

In 1970 the U.S. imported 23 per cent of the oil used and now 35 per cent of the oil consumed here is imported.

We are told and there is considerable evidence to persuade us there is no assurance should OPEC prices go down, they will not capriciously be hiked again like they were in 1973.

This leads to the conclusion the U.S. cannot afford to rely on OPEC for 35 per cent of its oil requirements.

There are two ways to correct this: use less oil and domestically produce more fuel.

In fact, one industrialist, Fred L. Shanklin, vice president of Union Carbide, has observed "The U.S. should thank its lucky stars that the Middle East War resulted in the Arab oil boycott."

He went on to say, "This forces us to look seriously at this situation, and hopefully to prepare for its solution by the early or mid-eighties. Otherwise," asserts Shanklin, "our dependence on imports might have become so great that the solution would have been more costly and required a generation or so longer."

The outbreak of Mideast hostilities in October 1973 led to significant Arab cutbacks in production of oil.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) failed to agree on a sharing plan to available oil supplies.

Thus the matter was left to oil companies.

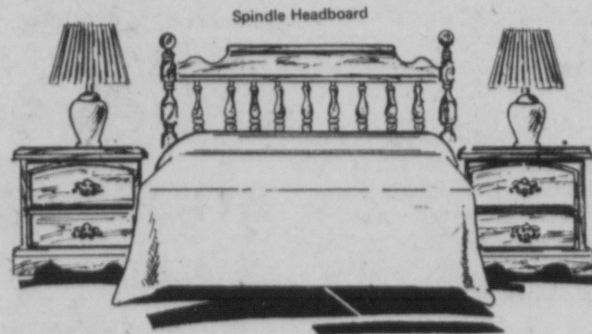

The OPEC used this seller's market to raise its tax take and the largest increase took place after negotiation with oil companies were broken off and OPEC governments unilaterally began to set prices.

It does not really seem one price-break by an OPEC member means the end to the spiralling cost of oil.

Plan to dismantle house and ship it back to Illinois

ROCHESTER, N.H. (AP) For 20 years Arnold Skromme and his wife have collected 18th Century furniture. Now, they have found a colonial house to match and plan to ship it piece by piece back home to Illinois.

Skromme has been dismantling the 217-year-old, six-room, frame house for the past two weeks and soon will pack the boards, beams, split-board lathing and even original "rose head" nails into a freight car bound for Moline, Ill.

"This is a home for the rest of our lives. It will be the last we'll ever build," the 58-year-old agricultural engineer for Deere and Co. said Tuesday, appearing somewhat embarrassed that the total project, according to his estimates, will cost "between $50,000 and $100,000 at least."

Along with six college students, his wife, a son and a neighbor from Moline, Skromme carefully has marked and numbered every disassembled piece of the house which, according to state records, was built in 1758 and has been proclaimed by local historians as the oldest frame house from Dover, N.H., to the Canadian border.

The house, nestled in a densely wooded area just 50 yards off a state highway, has never had electricity, water, or plumbing. It relies on six fire places converging into a single chimney for heat. No one has lived in it regularly since 1950.

"We've been collecting 18th Century furniture and now it's all in a modern ranch-style house and it doesn't fit at all. We wanted to get a house for our furniture," Skromme told a visitor.

He said he had looked at more than 50 old houses from eastern Pennsylvania to northern New England. Last August he came upon the Dame Homestead, as it is known locally, and bought the house for an undisclosed price. He said it will take another two or three years before it will be ready to be lived in at its new location. Although a bit disappointed that some of the beams of the unpainted, weather-beaten house appeared to be in worse shape than expected.

Couple exchanges vows

POLO— Miss Diane Hada-way and Mr. David Hinrichs were united in marriage in a re-cent candlelight service at the St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hada-way Jr., Polo, and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hinrichs, Sterling.

The Rev. Andrew Tetzlaff performed the ceremony with the Rev. Myrvin Holmberg as-sisting. The Rev. Tetzlaff sang the Lord's Prayer while Mrs. Lois Schmited, Polo, played the organ.

Given in marriage by her fa-ther, the bride wore a white gown with a sheer nylon skirt and a nylon lace bodice with sheer puff sleeves to the wrists. Her white petal and pearl head-piece was accented with long nylon net and a long French lace train was attached to her dress. She carried a bouquet of daisies with baby's breath.

Denis Hada-way, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Amanda Si-perly and Dawn Grobe, who wore floor-length empire blue flowered dresses. They carried May baskets with yellow roses and baby's breath.

Best man was Dan Hinrichs, brother of the groom. Grooms-men were Dan Koster, Sterling, and Duane Hada-way, brother of the bride. Jeff Hada-way, brother of the bride, and Mike Hinrichs, brother of the groom, were ushers.

A reception given in honor of the couple was held in the church parlor. Kathy Hinrichs, sister-in-law of the groom, cut the cake. Amy Hose and Barb Grobe, Polo, served punch and coffee. Babes Niemyer, Donna Patterson, Marcia Brockmeier, Mary Collins, Rosie Wilson, all Polo residents, helped in the kitchen. Chris Knie and Janie Bothe, Polo, opened wedding gifts.

Upon their return from a Wis-consin honeymoon the new Mr. and Mrs. Hinrichs will reside in Chadwick.

Mrs. Hinrichs is a 1974 gradu-ate of Polo High School and will

TAN SAVER

Pay extra attention to your skin and keep it moisturized while you're in the sun. Use a sunscreen lotion to filter out burning rays and also limit ex-posure time. To stave off ugly flaking and peeling, smooth on a thick film of petroleum jelly at night. This keeps skin thor-oughly moisturized while you sleep.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunder-standing on wedding pic-tures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pic-tures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsat-isfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disap-pointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Some-body in this group is crazy and I am asking your opinion. Which one is it?

Recently we were visiting a campsite. Mr. B. discovered a snake under a board and ran away yelling language that is unprintable. Mr. T caught the snake (non-poisonous) and chased Mr. B. for two coun-try miles "just to scare him a little."

Mr. C watched all the action and Mr. T, who was holding the snake at arm's length, was laughing his head off!

Then Mr. C walked up to Mr. T and said, "I have always been a follower of the Golden Rule. 'Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you.' Snakes bite people and I believe in getting even!"

With that, Mr. C bit the snake and I got sick to my stomach. Who is crazy?— Jackson, Miss.

Dear Jack: Mr. C is the leading candidate for the hatch, with Mr. T his possible roommate.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to know if it's normal for a wife to be upset when she finds $30 in her husband's billfold and he says he is saving the money to buy her a lovely birthday gift. Then, when her birthday comes around, he shows up with a cake from a bakery and hol-ers, "Surprise!"

I took a part-time job and saved $90 for that jerk's birth-day gift. When he hands me something that costs $11— especially after lying about the money in his wallet—I feel that he is selfish and unfair. Any advice?— Let Down Plenty

Dear L.D. Plenty: The next time The Last of the Big Spenders has a birthday show up with an $11 cake and holler, "Surprise!"

Dear Ann Landers: May I be you today? I want to give some advice to all the widows in the world who are longing to remarry.

When my husband died I was sure my life was finished. We had a beautiful marriage and I was certain I could never look at another man. Several months later the loneliness set in. I began to accept invitations from interesting bachelors and widowers. One day a very at-tractive man asked me to marry him. I said yes.

Here are the questions I wish I had asked myself:

1. Does the man have children?
2. How do THEY feel about his remarrying?
3. Do the children get along with one another or are they still fighting about their mother's estate?
4. What about YOUR children? Does the gentleman want to include them in HIS family circle?
5. When decisions are made will he consult you or does he go to his children?
6. Does the man really want YOU or is he looking for someone to take care of him?

Had I asked myself these questions I would not have put myself through three years of hell.

I'm out of that marriage now, thank God, regaining my health and enjoying "widowhood"— something I never thought pos-sible.— Learned The Hard Way

Dear Learned: Thanks for the lesson. I'm sorry Life was your teacher.

Aglow to sponsor July luncheon

The Women Aglow Fellow-ship in the area will sponsor a luncheon July 25, at 12:30 p.m., at the YWCA in Sterling. All men and women, young and old, interested in a personal fel-lowship with Christ are wel-come.

The speaker this month is the Rev. Robert Deyarmond, pas-tor of the Foursquare Church in DeKalb. He is on the Advisory Board of the Women Aglow Fel-lowship of Rockford and has a Christian radio ministry out of DeKalb.

The Rev. David Davis of Rock Falls will bring a musical offering. A free-will offering will be taken for the Rev. Mr. Deyarmond and the WAF ex-penses.

The cost of the luncheon is $2.25. A nursery will be pro-vided and Christian ladies will be present. Anyone planning to use this service must mention this when making reservations, so enough baby-sitters are made available. Donations may be made for this service.

Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Sharon Con-suelos at 626-2655 or Mrs. Mary Carter at 626-0393. All reserva-tions and cancellations must be in by July 22. Tickets are to be picked up and paid for at the door.

Keep in mind the August meeting. It will be early in the month in order to present Homer Martin, who will be in the area for limited time. He is the senior evangelist of the Christ is Life Evangelistic Assn., Inc. He will speak at the Sterling YWCA Aug. 6.

Auto rental firms are class action suit target

By BOB DUBILL

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's three largest auto rental companies are the latest target for a group that seeks out class action suits for its members.

In this case the group claims there have been millions of dollars in overcharges at airports. The suit was filed by the Independent Investors Protective League, a group that claims a thousand members in 50 states. The suit against Hertz, Avis and National Rent-A-Car System was filed after an antitrust complaint by the Federal Trade Commission charging them with conspiring to fix rental prices at major airports. The league alleges the companies overcharged customers an average of 20 per cent on each car rental.

"I assure you the car companies are afraid of our consumer class action," said I. Walton Bader, general counsel for the league. "The only thing the Federal Trade Commission can do is impose a light fine or get an order to stop price fixing. We are going for damages, $1.5 billion worth."

Class action suits permit a company or individual to represent not only themselves but all others in the same category in a single suit. As a practical matter, such cases seldom go to trial. They're either settled out of court or dismissed early in litigation.

In the car rental suit, the U.S. District Court in Brooklyn is certain to confront a cluster of questions from opposing lawyers.

Is there a valid claim? Are there common questions of law and fact? Is class action superior to other methods available? Should the case be confined to members of the league only, to every motorist who has rented a car at an airport, to the driver initiating the suit or none of the above? How many years has the alleged price-fixing conspiracy existed?

The suit charges that the companies had acted in collusion to fix identical or almost identical prices that were between 10 per cent and 40 per cent higher than those charged by competitors. It claims the corporations were guilty of antitrust violations during the past 10 years.

In its most recent ruling the U.S. Supreme Court held that costs must be borne by the class representative. This requires not only a rich plaintiff but one willing to take up the cudgel on behalf of others.

Enter the Independent Investors Protective League, a group of investors financing legal battles in courtrooms and corporate boardrooms through dues and contributions. The league differs from Ralph Nader's consumer advocates whose emphasis involves public interest issues such as the environment and automobile safety.

"We seek damage awards," said Bader. "We'll take about 100 cases a year."

"Our ratio of success is only about 25 per cent, including cases we discontinue before we start," said Bader. "The law favors big business. Companies operating on the fringe of liability have the benefit of top flight legal counsel. If the class action lawyer doesn't win a recovery he doesn't get a plugged nickel for his services."

Bader, a portly man in his mid 50s, logs an estimated million miles a year servicing his major client. His Manhattan law firm became general counsel to the league in 1972.

"I worked for a firm at a substantial retainer," he said.

"The company was absorbed by a large conglomerate and after the merger I didn't want to be subordinate to anybody. Besides, I had made my money already. Normally this kind of law is profitable enough only for people who can afford it."

"You need investigators, researchers and clerks. A lot of young lawyers come here to work just for the training. The law school deans send us people. If we have a successful result we'll give them an allowance."

The league has a board of directors headed by Philip Gordon, an inventor from Freeport, N.Y. Members pay $1 a year in dues. But the heart of the financial structure is contributions.

"Some are substantial," said Bader. "If we took all the securities cases we could handle the cost would average about $300 per member. We'll get into a consumer case if it has merit and the members desire."

The car rental suit grew out of member complaints about rate differences between the big three companies and smaller firms located several miles away from airports.

"Our members travel a lot," said Bader. "Joseph Allen, a Cleveland builder traveled to Dallas-Fort Worth in connection with bonds of a company in bankruptcy. He found he could have rented a car for half the price but some distance from the airport. We knew that the FTC was investigating. Getting evidence and proof can be an overwhelming task. When the FTC complaint was filed we zeroed in."

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

John Adams had a talented and determined marriage partner who urged him forward with daring ideas about the American Revolution. While he was attending the Continental Congress, Abigail Adams wrote her husband: "In this new code of laws... I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors. If particular care and attention is not paid to the ladies, we are determined to foment a rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by any laws in which we have no voice or representation." Jetfoil may be answer to commuters woes

HONOLULU (AP) — When it's sitting at the dock, the 90-foot 112-ton vessel looks like just another ungainly double-deck harbor cruise boat.

But when its twin gas turbine waterjet engines begin sucking up and expelling 220 tons of seawater per minute, the hull rises smoothly and the craft quickly accelerates to nearly 50 miles an hour, only knife-like steel struts slicing the water.

This is the Seafite Jetfoil, billed as the nation's first commercial hydrofoil and an eventual answer to commuters' dreams in many cities.

The first of three Jetfoils built by the Boeing Aerospace Co. for Seafite was tested here for several weeks and began passenger service in mid-June with less than capacity crowds aboard.

The craft makes daily runs to neighboring islands, competing with established airline service. But the Jetfoil is being watched closely for its potential on shorter commuter runs.

Its designers talk of pleasant, smooth commuter service from Great Neck to Manhattan in 18 minutes, San Francisco to the San Francisco Airport in 38 minutes and Bremerton to Seattle in 21 minutes.

Hawaii officials including the governor have ridden the Jetfoil and are looking at the possibility of buying and subsidizing the 250-passenger craft to cut the traffic jams between Honolulu and its seaside suburbs.

"It does have a jiggle, joggle," says a Seafite technical adviser, Justus Muller. "It's like a ride on a train back in the days when there was such a thing as a good train ride."

To many who took demonstration rides here the Jetfoil also suggested a plane, and in fact there are marked similarities.

The submerged hydrofoil beneath the struts is like the wing of an airplane, and the 3,000-horsepower engines do essentially the same thing with water that a jet aircraft engine does with air.

Passengers sit in a two-level air-conditioned cabin complete with airline-style seats, fold-down trays and attendants to serve food. The ocean swells and chop pass beneath the hull, and the motion the passenger feels is more like a plane in flight turbulence than a ship at sea.

The smooth ride is aided by a computer-controlled automatic pilot.

"In effect the skipper operates the vessel by telling the computers which direction he wants to go, at what speed and at what height," says Muller.

After drafting the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams were appointed by Congress to recommend a national seal. Their design was not accepted, but their idea for a national motto was. Congress approved a motto to which was apparently borrowed from 'The Gentlemen's Magazine: "E Pluribus Unum". This seemed to be a good description of what Congress hoped for — a unified country made up of many states, The World Almanac notes.

People in the news

By The Associated Press
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has no plans to leave Southern California and reports to the contrary are "completely false," says an aide to the former President.

Col. Jack Brennan commented Tuesday on a report by U.S. News & World Report that Nixon associates said he was considering moving to the New York City area. Brennan said there are no such plans.

The magazine said Nixon contemplated going into business with Robert H. Abplanalp, an aerosol can magnate and longtime friend. A spokesman for Abplanalp has denied the report.

At the end of May, the Los Angeles Times reported that advisers had urged Nixon to move to New York to establish a base of operations more accessible to world and national leaders. It said he had reached no decision whether to sell his property overlooking the Pacific.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-composer Isaac Hayes has been ordered by a Chancery Court judge to continue alimony payments to his former wife, but Chancellor Robert Hoffman has taken under advisement a possible reduction of the payments.

Hayes testified Tuesday that his wife was not entitled to further alimony payments because she was living openly with another man, in violation of the terms of their 1972 divorce decree. Mrs. Hayes denied she has been living with a man.

McDonald Yawn, Hayes' attorney, argued that Mrs. Hayes gave birth to a child out of wedlock. He said that constituted living with a man and that was grounds for cutting off $25,000 in alimony payments. Hayes pays $15,000 a year in child support.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Mayor Bill McCormick, who rides a bicycle to work, chains it to a post on the City Hall parking lot and has no faith in the arrangement.

On Tuesday he escorted fellow city officials to the lot to show them how much safer it would be if bike racks were built.

He proved his point. His bike had been stolen.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI flies to his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo Thursday for his two-month rest period in the palace on the Alban Hills.

He plans to commute by helicopter to Rome — about 15 miles — to conduct weekly general audiences in St. Peter's Square.

Infiltration practice for CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Central Intelligence Agency spies practiced for overseas assignments by infiltrating and reporting on the domestic political activities of the Socialist Workers party and its youth affiliate, according to newly disclosed CIA documents.

The documents, a four-inch-thick stack obtained by the party in its law suit against the agency, also show that the CIA was monitoring the party's political campaigning as early as 1950.

The material suggests that the CIA began to keep files on domestic political activity far earlier than the Rockefeller Commission reported. And it indicates that CIA infiltration of dissident political groups in Washington may have continued two years longer than the commission stated.

The documents were made public by the Political Rights Defense Fund, a New York-based organization which has provided legal aid to the party.

This batch of documents, provided by the CIA in compliance with a court order, came from the agency's Office of Security. The court has ordered the agency to turn over all files dealing with the party, and other material remains to be disclosed.

Meanwhile the Washington Post reported in today's editions that the FBI conducted dozens and sometimes more than 100 burglaries each year prior to 1966. Quoting a source described as having approved many of the break-ins, The Post article said most of the burglaries were directed against the Communist party, extremist groups, embassies and other targets that would come under the category of "security cases."

However, it said the source also asserted that a number of burglaries were conducted in ordinary criminal cases such as bank robberies, kidnappings and hijackings.

An FBI spokesman declined comment on the report. FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said earlier this week that FBI agents conducted break-ins to "secure information relative to the security of the nation" but that most of these were stopped in 1966.

The CIA disclosures provided the first public look at the agency's own files of specific domestic surveillance operations. Twenty-four documents dealt with an effort to acquaint new informers with the radical left prior to sending them on spy missions abroad.

CIA officials, including Director William E. Colby, authorized the operation but prohibited the trainee from acquiring data on "domestic dissident activities," the Rockefeller Commission stated.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

On July 8, 1778, Admiral Count Charles Hector d'Estaing brought the French fleet on American shores in support of the colonies' waning sea trade. D'Estaing's fleet arrived off the Delaware coast and chased away the inferior British naval forces, allowing the dying American seaborne trade to re-establish its importance to the Revolutionary War effort. Letter carriers fearful of Kokomo plan mail experiment

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mention the Kokomo Plan to almost any letter carrier in Portland and you'll hear stories of exploitation and warnings of a nationwide walkout.

"It's not a computerized mail system," said one mailman. "It's a computerized way of treating people."

The Kokomo Plan, known formally as the Letter Carriers Route Evaluation System (LACRES), is a mail delivery experiment launched in Kokomo, Ind., last November and at Portland's Rose City station in February. Although 1,000 more postal stations are being considered for the test, Kokomo and Portland are the only places it's been implemented.

The Postal Service says it's an overdue attempt to pare the fat from an inefficient delivery system; letter carriers dub it a simple speed-up aimed at eliminating 15,000 jobs.

James H. Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said recently that unless the Kokomo Plan is discontinued after the Postal Service reviews it in August, "I have no alternative but to order a work stoppage."

Rademacher received authorization at the union's national convention last August to call a nationwide walkout, although postal unions are prohibited by law from striking. As early as January he said the Kokomo

Plan just might make him do it.

"It's illegal," he said at the time, "and I am fully aware of the possibility of a jail sentence. But we must stop the mad attempts by management to dehumanize — robotize — our lives and existence."

Rademacher and other union leaders have also used the threat of a nationwide walkout to prod the Postal Service to speed up negotiations, currently in progress in Washington. The present contract expires Monday, and Rademacher claims the Postal Service is stalling on key issues.

On paper, the Kokomo Plan is simply a way to get the mail delivered by fewer people. Each carrier's route is dissected and measured — miles walked, steps climbed, rest-room stops, coffee breaks, mail loads. The information is fed into a computer, along with the number of routes the Postal Service would like to eliminate at Rose City (four out of 38).

It's the computer's job to divide the workload evenly among the remaining routes. In theory, the carrier functions more efficiently, the public served as well or better and the Postal Service saves money.

Working to avert mail strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Usery, who has often worked magic with a "keep 'em talking" approach to hammering out labor settlements, is at the center of government efforts to head off possible strikes by railway and postal workers.

Solving what often seemed to be intractable labor disputes has almost become routine for Usery during six years in Washington. But this time he is facing two sets of negotiations, both vital to the economy.

Shuttling between the two negotiations, the White House's chief labor troubleshooter has been meeting day and night with labor and management officials involved in the railroad and postal talks.

Usery, 51, is a big, back-slapping former welder from Georgia whose approach to bargaining is optimistic and folksy but persistent. He also has a tireless supply of energy which he uses to wear down negotiators.

"There is no substitute for keeping people at the bargaining table," he says. "There must be equal pressure on both sides to understand the issues and the feeling of the other party on the issues."

"The parties to a dispute are likely to get different versions of what their differences are all about unless they talk long enough to read each other correctly."

Usery's technique is to keep both sides in separate rooms, shuttle back and forth, counseling the parties, until he believes things are warmed up enough to bring them together, usually after midnight.

His marathon bargaining style was developed in the 1950s when he was a top negotiator for the Machinists Union in the aerospace industry. At the time, bargaining sessions were often conducted around the clock because of the necessity of including second and third shift workers in the talks.

Despite his union background, Usery has won praise from management as well as labor. "With Bill in here helping out, I think we can reach a mutually agreeable settlement," Darrel Brown, chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said this week in a comment typical of those heard during stalled contract negotiations.

Born Willie Julian Usery Jr., he uses only W.J., but everybody calls him Bill.

Although a Democrat, he was brought to Washington by former President Richard M. Nixon, who appointed him assistant secretary of labor in January 1969.

Ozark hillbillies thrive on tourist trade

By DOROTHY ROE LEWIS
BRANSON, Mo. (NEA)—
Meet the rich hillbillies of the Ozarks.

For once there is no such animal as a grim recession along the piney ridges of southwest Missouri and northwest Arkansas, once classified as one of the most depressed areas in the U.S.

Now that modern highways have opened up the hill country to tourist travel, the Ozarks are reaping a new kind of harvest—tourist dollars.

Hill families have subsisted for generations by "making do" with the sparse crops of their rocky land, the fish and game from their native streams and forests and the herbs, nuts and berries growing wild in the woods. They now are discovering that their pioneer crafts are worth their weight in gold to the "furriners" who tour the mountain roads in steadily increasing numbers.

Handmade quilts which Ozark women used to piece, from calico scraps to keep their families warm now sell for $50 to $150 and up at craft centers in the hills. Baskets which farmers used to weave from split oak and hickory bark to sell for a dime apiece a generation ago now bring from $3.50 to $15 or $20, depending on size and workmanship. Collectors, comb the backwoods in search of primitive furniture and utensils to use as objects of art in costly modern homes or fashionable antique shops.

The national craft boom has provided a bonanza for the ruggedly independent folks who glory in the name of hillbilly.

Two of the biggest centers for pioneer crafts are Silver Dollar City, near Branson, and the new Ozark Folk Center at Mountain View, Ark. Both anticipate more than a million visitors during the tourist season, which starts in April and runs through October. Don Richardson, manager of the Silver Dollar City Chamber of Commerce, says:

"Attendance has increased each year except one, 1969, since our opening in 1963. This year we are adding a new event, the Festival of Mountain Folks' Music in June and are extending the annual fall National Festival of Craftsman to three weeks—Saturday, Sept. 20 through Sunday, Oct. 12."

Bill Daum, recreation director of the Ozark Folk Center, says:

"We're stretching Social Security checks for the senior citizens around here. In almost every home in Stone County you can find someone who is skilled in pioneer crafts passed down through the generations and who is willing to demonstrate them at the Folk Center."

The Folk Center, opened in 1973, is an imposing compound built on a mountain top overlooking the little town of Mountain View, Ark. It was built with a federal grant of $3.4 million and is owned by the town of Mountain View. It is operated by the State of Arkansas as a state park and includes a huge auditorium devoted to folk music concerts every evening plus a compound where craftsmen of the region demonstrate 17 pioneer crafts. These range from spinning, weaving and quilting to the making of applehead and cornshuck dolls, pottery, blacksmithing and basket making. Music is provided by Jimmy Driftwood and his Rackensack Society, all residents of the area.

Typical of the newly prosperous craft families who have found an unlimited market at the craft festivals is the Sanders family of Centralia, Mo. Their newly remodeled farmhouse stands in the center of a square mile of cornfields. Neville Sanders farms his ancestral acres as he always has done, but his wife Jewel has found a national demand for the cornshuck dolls and flower arrangements she makes from the once-discarded cornshucks. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and their three children—Scott, 20, Susie, 18, and Sherry, 17, work the year round making cornshuck items they demonstrate and sell during fall festivals at Silver Dollar City and elsewhere.

CORNHUCKERY—The Sanders family of Centralia, Mo., pitch in to make cornshuck dolls, flower arrangements and miniature wood items—all from farm discards. Working to meet orders are (front left to right) Mrs. Jewel Sanders and daughters Susie and Sherry and (back) son Scott and Jewel's husband Neville.

Scott and his father make miniature barns and furniture from old timbers found on their farm while Mrs. Sanders and the two girls fashion the cornshucks into hillbilly dolls, angels, wreaths and flowers. Their sales are limited only by their production capacity and they ship their cornshuck creations to gift shops throughout the country.

Another couple who found a new way to life through the Silver Dollar City festival is Wilford and Irene Haymes of Conway, Mo. When Wilford had a heart attack a few years ago and was unable to work his farm, things looked black for the Haymes family. But Irene persuaded her husband to learn chair caning at a local craft class. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Haymes experimented with making cornshuck seats for chairs, footstools and benches and now joins her husband each fall at the National Festival of Craftsman. Both have all the work they can do the year round.

Wilford makes all the tools he needs, including an electric lathe, from discarded implements and junk around the farm. He remarks: "I always heard a man was no good if he couldn't make his own tools."

The nostalgia boom has benefited the craftsmen of the hills and the businessmen of the whole Ozark area. It's reflected in the hundreds of new luxury motels around the Table Rock, Taneycomo and Bull Shoals lake areas of Missouri and Arkansas as well as the scenic mountain regions around Mountain View, Mountainburg and Eureka Springs, Ark.

Outlanders are charmed by the pioneer dress of shopkeepers, waitresses and craftsmen

A new policy for an old radical

By RALPH NOVAK

"Ladies and gentlemen, tonight we have in our studio Scruffy Superfishal, the well-known radical activist of the 1960s, former advocate of bombing the headquarters of both the First National Bank and Jack and Jill magazine, and now an insurance salesman in Connorsville, Ind. Scruffy, it's a pleasure to have you here tonight on Face Up to It."

"Thank you, Lamont. It's really my pleasure to be here tonight on good old egalitarian network television."

"Well, that reminds me, Scruffy—if I may call you by the name which millions of young American protesters came to revere during the good old days of the '60s—a natural question is, why did you consent to appear with us here tonight?"

"An excellent question, Lamont. As you may recall, during the '60s, when I was a fervent, if misled hippie-radical-troublemaker-punk-protester, I started out calling for an end to the war and ended up demanding that all Detroit-made cars be melted down and turned into peace symbols. But now I have seen the light. I have noticed how Tom Hayden is running for the Senate, Abbie Hoffman is selling interviews and the old Weathermen are writing books to rip off The Movement. So I have deduced that it is the intellectually and metaphysically proper time for me to come forward, it is best for The People, it is what Chairman Mao would recommend in a situation like this and besides, I need the money."

"Yes, right, Scruffy, it is good to see that you have not lost the courage of your convictions. There may be some cynics, however, who question how it is that you once talked about overthrowing The Establishment and 'offing the Pigs,' whatever that meant, and creating a new world order while now you seem more concerned with getting a good buy on a color TV and finding a good pension plan."

"Sure, Lamont. It was, I believe, either Lenin or Bob Dylan or perhaps Howard Cosell who first said, 'A penny saved is a penny earned.' That's true of us revolutionaries as well as everyone else, you know. Therefore I thought it best—in terms, of course, of the historic class struggle of the oppressed peoples, to come forward at this time."

"But don't you remember, Scruffy, how you always said you didn't need the decadent fascist products of American industrialist exploitation and used to defrost TV dinners as a symbolic gesture of revolt?"

"Who could ever forget? But that was in a different stage of the revolution, the stage known as 'Alerting society to implicit dangers.' We are now, obviously, in a different stage of the revolution, known as 'Every man for himself.'"

"The question is, though, are things the same as they were 10 years ago or have the capitalist exploiters and military-industrial mongers been overthrown?"

"Not exactly, Lamont. However, we revolutionaries have noticed that they are not really all that bad in the long run. As you get older, you notice that even capitalist exploiters have their good side."

"That's pretty surprising coming from you, Scruffy, but change is permanent after all. Since you seem to have abandoned your old causes, though, perhaps you could tell us what your latest campaign is?"

"Nothing too much, Lamont, just getting by. Do you have some time to talk about your life insurance program, by the way?"

Deaths, Funerals

George W. Bearrows

ROCHELLE—George W. Bearrows, 90, 720 Lawn Drive, Loves Park, died Wednesday night at Swedish American Hospital, Rockford. He was born June 2, 1885, in Flagg Township, the son of George W. and Ida (Nowell) Bearrows, and was married to the former Mabel Cross, June 3, 1908, in Rochelle. A former Rochelle farmer, he was an employee of Del Monte Company. His wife, one granddaughter and two great-grandchildren preceded him in death.

Survivors include two sons, Wayne, Loves Park, and William, Rochelle; eight grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and two brothers, Meritt, Campbell, Calif., and Belford, Rochelle.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Cluts Funeral Home, Rochelle, with the Rev. Peder Carlson, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian Church, Loves Park, officiating. Burial will be in Flagg Cemetery. Visitation will be Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the funeral home.

A memorial has been established for the Presbyterian Church.

Mural depicts town history

A mural has been painted on a wall of the Tampico Telephone Company by area artists which depicts three important incidents in Tampico's history: The fire which destroyed the village, the tornado which struck the community in the early 1900s, and the "Sunny Train," which hauled grain from Tampico to Yorktown and Hoopole on a single spur of track.

The overall design was created by Robert Altmans, Rock Falls; Kevin Laughlin, Dixon, designed the train, and others participating in the painting were from Sterling and Rock Falls.

Pictured is the Farmers' Market in Evanston which opened Saturday and was met with a good crowd of shoppers. Dixon Farmers' Market will open July 26 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., in the parking lot east of the First United Methodist Church, in the area bordering Second Street. The market is sponsored by the Retail-Service Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and is to provide a market for area producers of vegetables and fruits to sell their produce and for a market where shoppers can purchase fresh farm produce.

Farmer's Market to open July 26

The Dixon Chamber of Commerce today announced plans have been completed for the Farmers' Market to be held in downtown Dixon beginning July 26, and each consecutive Saturday through the growing season. Sale hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and 26 stalls are available to area producers on a first-come, first-served basis.

The purpose of the Farmers' Market is to assist small truck gardeners and farmers having an excess of vegetables, fruits, etc., to readily dispose of their articles. It is not the intent of the Chamber to accommodate producers who normally grow in large quantities for canneries and supermarket sales. Applications for space rental will be accepted from producers and growers in Lee County and the immediate fringe area. Sellers will be required to give the exact location of land used for production, and all items sold must have been raised or prepared by the grower or producers, members of his family or by persons in his employ.

Sale items may include fruits, vegetables, edible grains, nuts and berries, apiary products, maple sugars and syrups, and non-edible articles such as cut or potted flowers. No meat, fish, poultry, baked goods or refrigerated dairy products will be allowed for sale.

Applications for space and copies of the Market Operating Rules may be obtained by contacting the Dixon Chamber of Commerce, 74 Galena Ave., or by telephone 284-3361. The Farmers' Market will be located in the parking lot at the corner of Second Street and Hennepin Avenue.

Purolator missing $150,000 this time

CHICAGO (AP) — For the second time in less than a year, a large amount of money is missing from Purolator Security, Inc., victim last autumn of the largest cash theft in U.S. history.

Some $150,000, mostly in $20 bills, vanished Friday instead of being delivered by armored truck to the South Suburban Federal Savings and Loan Association in suburban Harvey, the FBI said Tuesday.

The FBI said the money was being shipped by the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. to the savings and loan.

Police said the loss was discovered when the truck arrived in Harvey Friday, after making nearly a dozen previous deliveries.

The truck's driver and messenger, not identified, called the Purolator office immediately, said George H. Childs, the firm's regional vice president.

He said all previous delivery stops that morning were checked and that the Purolator main plant was searched by FBI agents, but the money was not found.

The driver and the messenger also passed extensive lie detector tests, said John Pratt, a Purolator senior vice president. He said tests are planned for other employees later in the week.

Life Safety work awarded by board

MT. MORRIS—Contracts on three bids for two different companies were awarded Wednesday night at the Mt. Morris School Board meeting for Life Safety work at the junior high school.

An $8,000 bid for general work at the school was awarded to Robert Hallen Inc., Rockford, while a $3,859.60 bid for heating and a $1,949.45 bid for electrical work was awarded to Plum Electric, Mt. Morris.

Board members later approved a $2,500 contract to Herbig Construction, Byron, for patchwork blacktopping around the Mt. Morris schools.

The board announced work had been completed for the removal of eight feet of the stage at the junior high school to make more room in the gym.

Highland Community College notified the board they would be holding a board meeting in Mt.

Egg-throwing leads to arrest

Lee County Sheriff's deputies arrested Randall J. East, 17, Amboy, and a juvenile boy, for illegal possession and consumption of alcohol early Thursday morning.

Deputies were notified that youths were throwing eggs at cars on the East-West Tollway from the Grove Road overpass. One car was reportedly hit, almost causing an accident. The ensuing investigation uncovered beer at the boys' nearby campsite.

East is being held in jail pending a court appearance today.

Telephone operators needed

ROCHELLE—Volunteers are needed to help in manning phones for a proposed "Crisis" line in Rochelle. The phone line will be in operation from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. seven days a week.

Volunteers would be required to attend several training sessions in preparation to being a part of this proposed service.

The sessions will be conducted by staff members from the Sinissippi Mental Health Center, Rochelle Community Hospital staff, ministers, and the director of the "Contact-Line" in Rockford. Rochelle police would also participate.

To initiate this service, a goal has been set for 28 volunteers, each volunteer would be required to work two four-hour shifts per month.

Anyone interested in participating in this program may call Rochelle 562-4189.

Motorcyclist ticketed

George P. Healy, 26, Rockford, was arrested Wednesday night by Dixon police. He was charged with violation of classification of his driver's license. Healy's Honda motorcycle was stopped on the 200 block of East Second Street.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank my friends for plants, flowers and cards while in Rockford Memorial Hospital. Also for prayers and a special thanks to Pastor Horne. Thanks again.

Equity defendants sentenced

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Each of the last three remaining defendants in the Equity Funding fraud case have been sentenced to three-month jail terms.

Attorney for the accountants sentenced Wednesday in U.S. District Court said they would appeal.

Julian S. H. Weiner, Marvin A. Licht and Solomon Black were the only defendants in the Equity scandal to go to trial. Nineteen other defendants pleaded guilty.

The three were outside auditors of Equity Funding, once considered among the fastest-growing financial conglomerates in the United States.

It collapsed into bankruptcy in April 1973. The Securities and Exchange Commission charged the company with massive fraud after disclosures of a scheme to turn out bogus insurance policies by computer and to inflate assets in order to boost stock prices.

Singing contest goes to the dogs

CHICAGO (AP)—Forty-six contestants showed up for a singing contest at a posh downtown hotel, but the event Wednesday was not exactly a howling success.

Many of the entrants froze up under the glare of lights and television cameras and stood mute despite a frenzy of pleading, coaxing and bribing.

Even the lure of fame and fortune failed. The occasion was a singing dog contest to find a spokesman, or spokesperson, for a dog-food company.

"Reggie, you blew it," said one woman angrily as her mutt scampered from the spotlight, leaving her singing, "How much is that doggy in the window."

Irving Biele, a beagle, refused to give out more than a whimper as his master played his harmonica and assured the judges repeatedly: "He does much better at home."

One confidnet woman said her "Buttinnose" would only sing when a telephone rang, so the sponsors obligingly went out of the room and dialed the telephone number of the audition hall.

But, Buttinnose stood silently, staring, puzzled.

Northwest continues flights

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Northwest Airlines flight operations were reported normal today despite a 2 a.m. (CDT) strike deadline set by the Air Line Pilots Association. A spokesman for the pilots said there had been "significant progress in negotiations."

The spokesman, Robert Razanka, said flights on the nation's seventh-largest air carrier would operate on schedule "pending final negotiations and ratification of a new agreement."

He said some picket lines went up immediately after the early-morning deadline passed with no contract settlement, but "the negotiating committee felt there has been sufficient progress made that we will continue flying."

Little murder trial continuing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The first black juror has been seated in the Joan Little murder trial, after the state had used three of its nine peremptory challenges to excuse blacks.

Defense attorneys for Miss Little, a 21-year-old black charged with killing a white jailer, have objected each time prosecutors excused a black potential juror.

Pecola Jones, a 49-year-old black woman, became on Wednesday the fourth juror seated for the case. She was accepted by the prosecution despite her reservations about capital punishment.

Miss Little faces a mandatory death sentence if convicted of first-degree murder in the death of Clarence Allgood, 62.

Former Catholic nun convicted

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—A former Roman Catholic nun who once waged a reform campaign to gain a school board seat showed little emotion when found guilty by a U.S. District Court jury of conspiracy to extort.

Annalinda H. Little, 47, was accused of conspiring to extort money from a food firm which did business with the school board in behalf of her husband, security guard William H. "Bud" Little.

Mrs. Little, a former member of the Adorers of the Blood of Christ, was a member of the District 189 school board from 1971 until 1974.

Ben Allen, president of Allen Foods, had testified during the three-day trial that the defendant was present when a kickback scheme was arranged for her husband.

The kickback, Allen testified, was at a 2.5 per cent rate, representing $2,482 in the contract the company obtained with the school district.

A district court jury deliberated a little over three hours before returning its verdict to Judge James L. Foreman.

Russian sailors want some beer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Russian sailors confined aboard the freighter Volkhovgays say they need some beer to pass the time until they leave Friday what they consider to be an inhospitable city.

The ship goes to Chicago next, and crew members were unanimous in their wish to be allowed to see the Windy City.

The 49 crew members, who were detained on the ship by officials of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said it is ironic that Americans and Russians can agree to meet in space but they cannot agree about meetings on earth.

Canada to reduce gas export

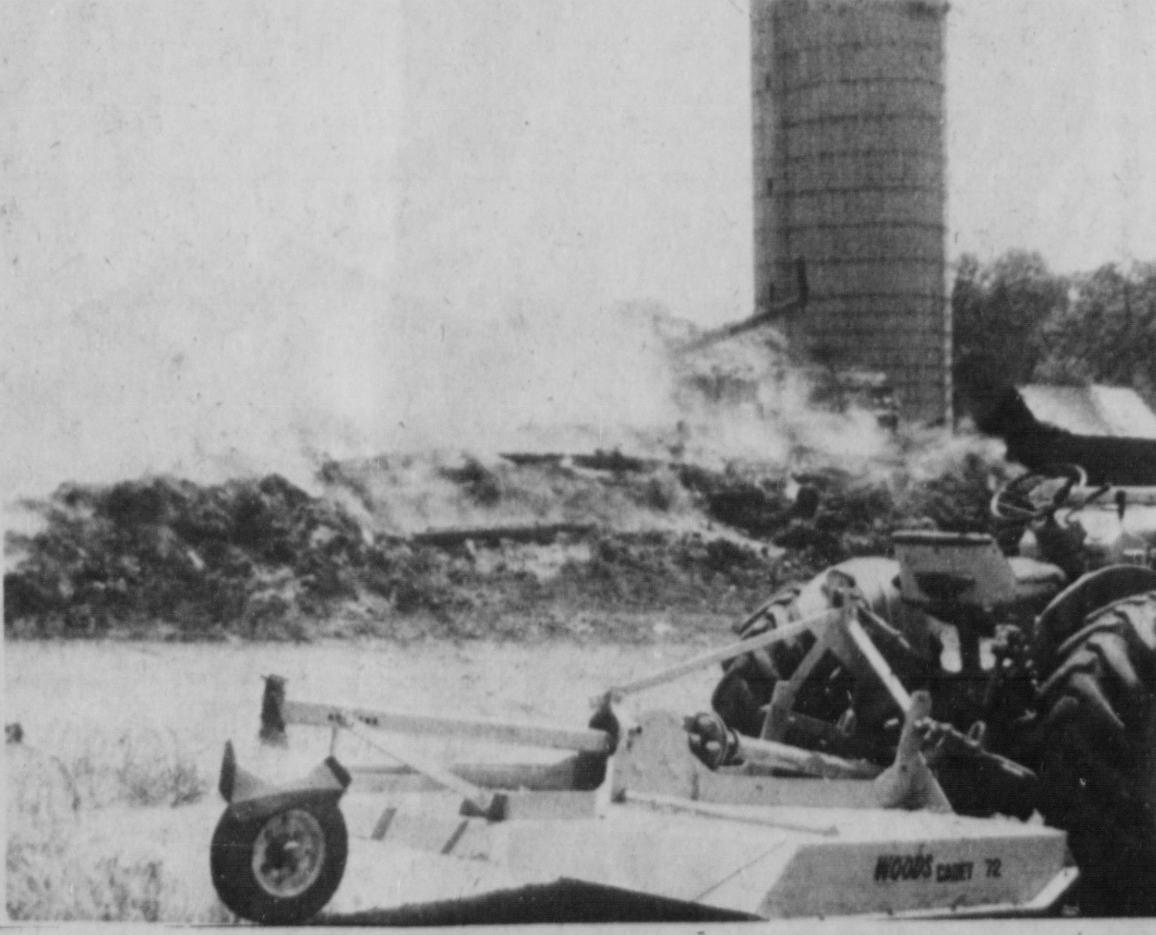

OTTAWA—The Canadian government plans to reduce the export of natural gas to the United States, but Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says U.S. border areas without alternate supplies of energy will not suffer. "We're not going to leave people out in the cold," Macdonald said Wednesday as he announced plans to negotiate cutbacks to the American market and to reduce consumption by Canadian industries until new supplies are available.

Soviets acting like capitalists

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The Soviet Union increased the price of oil it exported to its East European allies 120 to 150 per cent last year, according to information received in recent weeks by West European governments. Officials say the increase appears to be straining the economies of Moscow's Communist customers. "The Soviets are acting like good capitalists," one diplomat observed. "They have bumped up their oil prices to take advantage of world market conditions. However, so far as charges to their allies are concerned, they have kept their prices below those of the Arab and other oil-producing countries."

Portugal's coalition dissolved

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Portugal's leftist military leaders dissolved the military-civilian coalition government Thursday after the moderate Popular Democratic Party (PPD) quit the cabinet. The PPD walkout, following that of the Socialists last week, left the Communist front the only significant civilian group in the cabinet, and it has the allegiance of only 18 per cent of the voters. A spokesman for the ruling military Revolutionary Council said the new cabinet would not be exclusively military, but he refused to indicate who the civilians would be.

Barn blaze

A barn, corncrib and the contents of the two buildings were destroyed by fire late Tuesday night on the Wayne Brantner farm, west of Mt. Morris. The cause of the fire is undetermined. Firefighters from Polo and Oregon were called for mutual aid to help the Mt. Morris department extinguish the blaze. Contents of the corncrib which were destroyed included 800 bushels of soybeans, farm machinery, hay and straw and baled bedding. Destroyed along with the barn were baled bedding, hay and farm hardware. A damage estimate was not available. (Telegraph Photo)

Chicken theft is probed

Six baby chickens were reported stolen from Stella Hoff, 720 S. Jefferson Ave. The chicks, valued at $4.50, were taken from the Hoff residence where they were fenced in. Police believe that the incident might be connected with the recent theft of pigeons from Hoff.

Night workers discuss their sleeping problem

CHICAGO (AP) — Night workers talk about their sleep problems the way other people talk about the weather, says a University of Chicago sociology researcher.

Sleeping seems to be the major problem of these workers, followed by eating and social relations, she said in an interview Wednesday.

The researcher, Lola Jean Kozak, drew on her experiences as a psychiatric nurse on the overnight-or graveyard-shift in Michigan hospitals and on sociological literature for a study published in the Michigan State University sociology journal, Summation.

Miss Kozak, now a Chicago graduate student, said the lives of people who work night shifts "were shaped by the fact that the hours they worked were different from those of the majority of people in their environment."

Sleeping in daytime, she notes, is difficult because "You are awakened about three hours into a sound sleep by the whine of a neighbor's electric drill, pounding hammers, and loud talk."

"If it's 3 a.m., you can march over in righteous indignation and demand quiet," she said. "The police will even come and back you up. If it is 11 a.m., you are helpless."

And there are door-to-door salespeople, crying babies, construction crews, lawn mowers and other noises to disturb daytime sleep, along with bright sun shining in the window.

"Problems with sleeping became a regular part of conversations with fellow night workers, much like discussing the weather by day people," she reported.

Digestive difficulties are common to all night workers, she said.

"If night workers tried to coordinate their eating with spouses, friends or roommates, they faced roast beef and mashed potatoes shortly after waking when their stomachs would have preferred toast and coffee," Miss Kozak noted.

By the time night workers' bodies are ready for a full, hot meal, they are at work where such a meal rarely is available, she said.

Consequently, night workers have a poor diet and their digestive problems are worsened by increased consumption of cigarettes, coffee and liquor.

Loss of sleep, lack of appetite, weight loss, heartburn, constipation and diarrhea were troublesome legacies of the graveyard shift, she said.

But, "The erosion of the night worker's recreational patterns and interpersonal ties became the most troublesome situation of all."

Those who work the first night shift—ending 11 p.m. or midnight—have less trouble with social relations than those who work the later shift, she said.

First night shift workers frequently meet after work at bars and at each others' apartments and get together in the daytime before work, Miss Kozak said.

There are fewer opportunities for such activities when a worker gets off in the early morning, she said.

Night work strains marital relationships, especially among those who have been recently wed, and normal sexual rela-

Harris supports two-year budget

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Republican leader of the Illinois Senate says he would support a return to two-year rather than single year budgeting in Illinois.

Sen. William C. Harris of Pontiac said Wednesday he plans to introduce this fall a proposal to amend the state constitution and restrict legislative business in odd-numbered years to consideration of the budget for the next two fiscal years.

Sessions in even-numbered years would be devoted to substantive legislation, he said.

Illinois discontinued two-year budgeting with adoption of the new state constitution in 1970.

But Harris said the experience with one-year budgeting has shown the procedure is "a terrible waste of time and an unreasonable demand on agencies" who must begin preparation of a new budget within weeks after final legislative approval of their last proposal.

Three-fifths of the House and Senate must each approve pro-

Rochelle group discusses pool-gym complex

ROCHELLE—Members of the Park Board, swimming pool committee and interested citizens discussed revenue for operating expenses of a proposed pool-gym complex in Rochelle at an informal meeting in the Park District office Wednesday night.

The new complex would be a community facility, with Rochelle High School and possibly the elementary schools using the facility for classes. The gym at the proposed complex would have an all-purpose floor for multiple uses including tennis, badminton, basketball and other recreational sports.

The group discussed the cost of the complex, using guidelines for the cost of a similar complex in Sterling. The board also considered negotiations with the school district concerning a share of cost for the new facility.

A location near the high school or near the park district office in Rochelle was also discussed. The group plans to meet with members of the high school board, with accurate cost figures, for negotiations at the school board meeting Monday night.

tions are difficult to maintain when one partner is on an odd shift, she added.

There also is a social stigma attached to night work, Miss Kozak found. Others think that night work is somehow less important than day work and that people who work night shifts are strange, she said.

posals to amend the constitution before they can be placed on the general election ballot for consideration by the voters.

On another topic, Harris said he is "inclined to support the governor's conclusions on the budget" and suspects his GOP colleagues will also vote to sustain the governor's budget actions during the veto session planned to start Oct. 22.

Gov. Daniel Walker, a Democrat, has detailed in the last 10 days what he said were $535 million in cuts from the appropriations passed by the General Assembly in its spring session.

The governor had proposed a $10.8 billion budget in March, but in mid-June said the state would not have enough money to sustain those requests and urged a 6 per cent reduction in his general revenue fund proposals. Where the legislature failed to trim his proposals, Walker did by using his reduction veto power.

Harris emphasized that taxpayers should be aware that the budget for fiscal 1976 which Walker approved is 11 per cent higher than it was in fiscal 1975, which ended June 30.

Rochelle woman injured

OREGON—Mary Rainwater, 19, Rt. 2, Rochelle, was reported in fair condition in the intensive care unit at Rochelle Community Hospital, where she was admitted following an accident on Mulford Road, north of Creston, early today.

According to Ogle County Sheriff's Police reports, the Rainwater auto was northbound on Mulford Road about 2 this morning, when it crossed the road and struck a culvert in front of the Terry Petrie home, 3503 Mulford Road. The collision ignited the car and Petrie, who heard the sound of the crash, pulled Rainwater from the wreckage.

The Rochelle Fire Department was called to the scene to extinguish the fire. Fire Chief William Lower said the car was totally engulfed in flames when the fire department arrived and the auto was a total loss.

Ogle County Sheriff's Police are investigating the accident.

Housewares Expo hits at Bicentennial theme

CHICAGO (AP) — The Bicentennial theme runs strongly through the National Housewares Exposition—from an ice bucket shaped like the Liberty Bell inscribed with the 13 original states to beverage glasses with stars bordering the 1776-1976 design.

"There are 1,776 different Bicentennial housewares on display," said Dolph Zapfel, managing director of the National Housewares Manufacturers Association which has nearly 1,500 exhibitors at McCormick Place this week.

Zapfel said most manufacturers indicate they will hold the line on prices the rest of the year and that the industry has no material shortages which could affect delivery of new products. Some makers, he said, are running double shifts to keep up with orders.

"If there is a trend, it might be the entry of wide-ranging home security products into the housewares field," he said. "Some manufacturers are introducing early warning alarms that detect fire at its earliest stages when there is little or no smoke, flame or heat. There also is a new decorator-styled, wall-mounted fire extinguisher."

The most expensive item at the show, which is closed to the general public, may be a grandfather clock of solid walnut with olive ash burl accents and a solid brass dial. It retails for $2,000.

And a sobering thing for the home bar is a face that is activated by pulling its necktie. It spits water, laughs for 20 seconds, sticks out its tongue and rolls its eyes. Price, $30.

Another bar item is a traffic signal decanter and matched traffic signal coasters coordinated with a traffic signal bar lamp.

champ, John L. Sullivan—four feet tall, in fighting pose.

Other things: A kit for drying, pressing and preserving flowers for wall decorations; a glass tumbler set decorated with color pictures of eight endangered animal and bird species; and soil moisture testers—metal gadgets that make a screaming noise if a plant gets too much moisture or fertilizer, and a ticking sound if it needs more of the same.

Ban on PE classes may be instituted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government regulations banning separate physical education classes for boys and girls may go into effect despite a House vote to drop them.

The House voted narrowly Wednesday to allow separate gym classes, but it is unlikely Congress will conclude action on the measure before the Monday effective date for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare rules, meaning at least temporary enactment. And a veto threatens.

The 212-211 House vote came on an amendment to a $7.9 billion bill for government aid to education during the 15 months that began July 1. The amendment also would allow single sex organizations such as honorary societies.

The Senate previously has refused to adopt a similar amendment and the bill stalled in a House-Senate conference. The conferees turned the problem back to the separate chambers for resolution.

ROCHELLE—A second annual Pork Chop Bar-B-Q, sponsored by the Rochelle Chamber of Commerce is scheduled for Wednesday. The event will be held at Memorial Park and will start at 5:30 p.m.

Ogle County Pork Producers will prepare the Pork Chops, and members of the Chamber Agricultural Committee will prepare the sweet corn.

Del Monte Corp. will donate the corn, Dean's Foods will provide milk and Harry Ross, area farmer has promised tomatoes if they are ready.

Members of the Kings Presbyterian Church will hold their annual Ice Cream Social following the Bar-B-Q.

Rochelle's Municipal Band will be playing their last concert of the season and as an added attraction, members of the band will be costumed in fitting with the Bicentennial

Sues over accident

A $35,000 damages suit has been filed in the Lee County circuit clerk's office.

The suit stemmed from an automobile accident in Amboy on June 17 in which Gary Frye was injured. The suit charges that the driver of a car, Leo Faivre, failed to exercise control on Northeast Street, went off the road and struck the 2½-year-old Frye boy. Gary Frye received a broken leg, neck injuries, and other cuts and bruises from the accident.

The $35,000 is being sought to cover medical expenses related to Frye's injuries.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rudy Vallee, 73, has been married 25 years to his fourth wife, 30 years younger than he.

The former Eleanor Norris of Berkeley, Calif., was only 15 when the thrice-married crooner met her. Three years later they were married.

"Ours has been the perfect marriage right from the start," she said in an interview. "Rudy has a terrific brain and a terrific sense of humor. If you don't have humor, especially in marriage, forget it."

Vallee is in San Francisco performing in the Civic Light Opera production "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" starring Robert Morse.

is in critical condition at St. Mary Hospital following a crippling stroke over the weekend, officials said.

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday the 47-year-old Adderley collapsed Sunday while visiting a friend here.

Dr. Alexander S. Williams said Adderley suffered a massive cerebral vascular accident that affected his speech center and left him paralyzed on the right side.

Adderley has a history of high blood pressure and is in an intensive care unit that is monitoring his vital signs, Williams said.

Adderley had been scheduled to perform in Indianapolis on Monday night.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Interior Stanley K. Hathaway has undergone tests at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., for an undiagnosed illness.

The Interior Department announced that Hathaway had complained about not feeling well on Tuesday after a breakfast meeting. However, he completed his day of work before entering the hospital. The tests took place on Wednesday.

Hathaway, former governor of Wyoming, was sworn in as secretary of the interior on June 13.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playboy financier Bernie Cornfeld has decided to return to Los Angeles from London and surrender to federal officials, his lawyer says.

A federal grand jury announced June 4 a three-count fraud indictment accusing Cornfeld of using a "blue box" electronic device to place about 343 overseas calls free from his Beverly Hills mansion. The indictments said the calls to London, Geneva and elsewhere cost about $4,000 over a four-month period.

Bruce Perlman, an attorney for Cornfeld, said Wednesday his client is not avoiding extradition and is in England on extremely important business.

Polo dedicates park lights

POLO—A ceremony dedicating the lights at the new Polo City Park was held Monday by officials of the city, the Polo Park Board and members of the Polo Chapter of Jaycees, who donated the new lights.

Receiving the lights from Jaycee president Bill Clayton for the city of Polo was Mayor Riley Johnson, alderman; Bryant Samuel, Charles Quick and Harry Boom; and Park Board members Dr. John Clayton, president; Mrs. Leland Deihl and Robert Fitzsimmons.

Park Board President Dr. Clayton thanked the Jaycees for the lights and then explained some of the present construction and the future needs and construction for the new park.

Clayton told of the working project for the lights for the park and said the lighting of the ball diamond was first discussed at the Jaycee membership meeting in August 1974. It was thought to be too expensive and too large a project to adopt at this time, but felt to merit a committee to check into it further.

At the September meeting of the Jaycees it was reported that the cost would be under $5,000 to complete the project with all-volunteer labor. The membership voted to adopt the project and go into debt, then borrow the needed money.

In early October six 45-foot telephone poles were purchased from the Commonwealth Edison Co. and erected. During the winter months that followed, 28 1,500-watt quartz lights and all necessary accessories were purchased. In April 1975 the lights were mounted to the crossarms and pre-tested, and in May the crossarms were mounted on the poles and all underground wiring was installed for the connection of the lights.

This project was completed at a cost of $3,500. Approximately 25 members helped on it and in the long run all 40 members will have participated through ways and means projects.

Clayton continued, "We in the Jaycees are proud to have completed this project without soliciting any group or people for money. All money for this project was and will be raised through ways and means projects."

"We are also proud to have furnished to the youth of the community, all little league teams, major league teams, all girls teams and the kittenball league, a safely lighted place to play baseball. We are equally proud as Jaycees to donate this project to the city of Polo and all of its citizens. We believe this is our way of saying 'Thank you' and showing civic pride in this great community."

Dr. John Clayton, president of Polo Park Board, and Ken Ubanks, 1974 president of Polo Jaycees, pulling the switch to light up the softball diamond at the new Polo City Park on Monday, July 14, for the dedication ceremony. Others pictured, from left, are Park Board member Robert Fitzsimmons, Jaycee members Phill Fossler, 1975 President Bill Clayton, and Bill Saunders. Good economic news is boost for stock market

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is being supported by some pretty encouraging economic news in the past couple of weeks and indications for the time being are that the good news will continue to flow.
The question Wall Streeters are asking themselves now is how much of this news has been discounted, anticipated, and therefore already worked into the current level of stock prices.
In general, the market anticipates news events. It is a futures market, a market in which investments are largely determined by an assessment of what might happen rather than what is happening or has happened.
Still, a certain amount of added bounce seems to follow confirmation of expectations, and those confirmations are plentiful today. Here are some of the important forces underpinning the market at the moment:
1. The reduction of inventories. The Commerce Department announced this week that the overhang of goods already produced but unsold was diminished in June by $3 billion.
2. Industrial production rose last month after eight straight monthly declines. The rise wasn't much, just four-tenths of 1 per cent, but in the opinion of some government officials it indicates a turn.

3. Interest rates might not continue rising sharply after all. There were fears in Wall Street that rising rates would tend to draw money from stocks into debt instruments. Suddenly, that prospect is more remote.

While many banks have pushed their prime rate to 7.25 per cent, the business loan demand to support further increases seems to have declined, for the time being at least. It still bears watching, but the threat seems less ominous than it was just a couple of weeks ago.
4. While second quarter earnings of corporations, now being released in abundance, might be lower than in the comparable quarter a year ago, they are likely to show some improvement.

The least gets better

By MIKE CUNIFF

Last season and for several years before that, rooters of the National League West teams termed the Eastern Division "The National League Least" because that division could most of the time boast only one team playing better than .500 baseball while the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds pounded their opponents in the West.

But "The Least" has turned into "The Best" this time around, as five of the six National League East clubs are playing a better percentage of baseball at the 1975 All-Star break as compared to their leaders in 1974.

Pittsburgh is up .146 from .479 (45-49) in '74 to .553 and .625 this year. The Pirates were fourth a year ago, 3½ games behind Philadelphia. The Phillies, Cubs, Mets and Cardinals are also ahead of last year's pace, while the Montreal Expos are behind.

Philadelphia is up .35 from .516 (49-46) to .551 (49-40), but is trailing Pittsburgh by 6½ contests this season. St. Louis was tied for second with Montreal last year with a 46-49 record for a .484 mark and a three-game deficit. The Cardinals are 12 games back this season with a 42-44 (.488) slate, an improvement of four points.

The Expos, the only team not showing improvement, has dropped from third (45-48 and .484) a year ago to last (35-48 and .422) in '74, a loss of 62 points. Last season, Montreal was 3 games back during the All-Star interval, while the Expos are 17½ behind this campaign.

The Chicago Cubs streaked to a 20-10 record in their first 30 games but have slumped to a 42-48 (.467) level, 14 games back. In '74, the Cubs were 7 behind with a 41-52 (.441) ledger.

Another gainer is the New York Mets, up 71 points from .435 (40-52) last season to .506 (43-42) in '75. Even with the improvement, the Mets have fallen farther behind the leaders than the '74 Mets, who were 7½ back of the Phillies compared to 10½ behind the Pirates this campaign.

In the National League West, three teams (Cincinnati, San Francisco and San Diego) are up while Los Angeles, Houston and Atlanta show negative figures. Cincinnati has the biggest gain with a plus .86 (.592 based on 58-40) to .678 (61-29) to move from five games back of the Dodgers to 12½ in front in '75.

San Diego's Padres are up .30 from 43-58 (.426) to 41-49 (.456) but still are closer to last place than first. The Padres were 22 back in '74 and are 20 behind the Reds now. The Giants from the Bay Area were 45-53 (.459) in '74 and 41-47 (.466) this time around for a .07 gain. Last year, the Giants were 18½ back and are 19 behind this season.

The biggest loser is the Los Angeles Dodgers, down .111 from a first-place figure of .634 (.649) to 49-42 (.538) and from a league-leading 5½ games to trailing the Reds by 12½. Atlanta's Braves are down .62 from 50-49 (.505) in 1974 to 39-49 (.443) in '75. Atlanta was 14 games back last season and faces a 21-game deficit this year.

Brightly-colored uniforms may look nice but do not win ball games, as the Houston Astros can attest. The Astros were 51-46 (.526) in '74 at this same point, but are 33-59 (.359) now for a loss of .167. It is the biggest drop in the major leagues.

American League facts and figures will be released in a column for Friday.

The schedule for the Dixon Invitational on Saturday pits Stillman Valley versus Princeton at Borg-Warner, Boyland against Newman at Sauk Valley, and Oregon versus Sterling at Reynolds at 9 a.m., followed by the Rock Island-winner of Stillman Valley-Princeton at Borg-Warner, Dixon against Franklin Grove at Reynolds and Chadwick versus Rochelle at Sauk Valley at 11 a.m.

The single elimination tournament continues at 1 p.m. as the winners of the Boyland-Newman plus Oregon-Sterling contests meet at Borg-Warner, while the losers of the games meet at Sauk Valley. A consolation champion involving the five first-round losers will be decided at a 5 p.m. game at Borg-Warner, while the champion will be crowned at an 8 p.m. contest at Reynolds Field.

Two Al Morrison notes: On one report turned in by the Dixon Telegraph team in the Bronco League is the sentence "compliments to the umpires Mark Zinnen and Mike Ramage for a well-called game," while in Monday's paper I identified the first name of Pony League member of the Local 790 team as Brian Callow, which in reality is Scott.

Polo's Sandy Koufax baseball team, sponsored by Al Woodin's Excavating Co., will be eligible to play in the district and state tournaments. Members of the team are Dan Pontnack, Craig Manning, Jeff Bartlett, Bruce Scholl, Bob Hartle, Randy Engleberts, Pat Garst, Bob Cox, Mike Fitzsimmon, Mike Harn, Bob McKean, Sam Heath, Dennis Harrison, Roger Bailey, Don Typer, Jud Coliflower, Greg Welch, Kent Scholl and Paul Cavanaugh. The coach is Gus Finkle and manager is Dale Hartle.

Almost fired Wednesday Kuhn might go

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn clung tenuously to his job today with the American and National leagues expected to table a final vote on extension of his term of office.

Kuhn came perilously close to being fired Wednesday when four American League clubs opposed his rehiring at baseball's summer meetings. Kuhn, whose seven-year term of office expires Aug. 12, 1976, needs nine of the 12 votes in each league to continue in office.

He had all 12 in the National League but only eight in the American. The opposition was led by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley and Baltimore boss Jerold Hoffberger, both longtime opponents of Kuhn. They apparently convinced the New York Yankees and Texas Rangers to join them in opposing Kuhn.

The AL clubs spent six hours discussing the delicate issue

Wednesday and then sent word to their National League counterparts of what one owner called, "our straw vote."

That didn't sit too well with the Nationals, where Kuhn's support was reported to be complete. At that point, the NL bosses invited the AL owners into their session for an informal meeting. The single matter to be discussed was Kuhn.

For another hour, the NL, led by influential Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers, tried to change the minds of Kuhn's opponents. But the only progress they made was to get the AL owners to agree to table the matter.

At that point, AL President Lee MacPhail and NL President Chub Feeney were dispatched to Kuhn's suite to report what had happened. They told him the leagues wanted to table the matter. At first, the commissioner balked at that step.

"As I understand it," said one owner, "the commissioner said he wanted a vote taken today. Then he changed his mind and said it would be all right to table it."

That left Kuhn's job in something of a limbo status. The tabling could be for two weeks, two months or, as Finley put it, "two minutes."

It seemed certain however, that no final vote would be taken at today's joint meeting. "The National League just doesn't feel the climate is right for one right now," said an AL owner.

Formal votes can only be held at joint meetings and there is enough opposition to an immediate one on Kuhn to assure the commissioner's backers being able to avoid one today.

That will give O'Malley and Kuhn's other supporters time to break down the opposition to the commissioner. The question is whether they can change the mind of one of the four clubs opposed to Kuhn.

Kuhn's problems with Finley date back to the 1972 and 1973 World Series when he slapped the Oakland owner with fines, because he paid performance bonuses to Gene Tenace and Joe Rudi after the '72 classic and then when he tried to fire second baseman Mike Andrews following two costly errors in the '73 Series.

Forbes testifies

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—A jury of seven men and five women begin deliberations today on the question of whether a professional hockey player is bound by civil laws in a sport that encourages violence.

The player, David Forbes, a Boston Bruins winger, testified in his own behalf Wednesday, denying that he had used his stick to injure Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars last Jan. 4.

Forbes, 26, said he probably was holding his stick as he skated toward Boucha, intent on settling the score for an earlier "sucker punch."

But Forbes denied any intent to use the stick as a weapon and denied using the butt end as a spear, causing a serious eye injury to Boucha.

The defense rested after Forbes' testimony. He is the first professional athlete to face criminal charges in the United States from an incident occurring during a sports contest.

Sport Notes

Reints wins

ROCKFORD—Willie Reints of Rockford scored a win in the 30-lap Late-Model stock car main event at Rockford Speedway Saturday night. The home-town favorite started in the front row, took the lead in lap one and kept his '70 Mustang out in front the full distance.

Jack Klein of Rolling Meadows, and Dennis Burgan of Kenosha, Wis., finished two-three in the feature event.

Dixon football news

Less than four weeks away dawns the beginning of the 1975 football practice for Dixon High School gridiron candidates. Head varsity coach Sam Applebaum stopped into the office Wednesday with the following information.

On Aug. 7 mouthpieces will be issued and fitted by a dentist, beginning at 9 a.m. An equipment fee of $5, insurance fee of $5 and parental permission card will be collected at this time. Insurance for athletes is required for each participant.

Parental permission cards can be picked up at the high school between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Your school physical can be used for football, however it must be taken before this date. On Aug. 11 the coaching staff will hand out equipment in the old gym, using the following schedule: lettermen at 9 a.m., followed by seniors at 9:15, juniors 9:45, sophomores 10, and freshmen at 11.

Practice will start on Aug. 13 for varsity and sophomore candidates with Aug. 15 being the beginning day for freshmen.

Ohio trapshooting

The Oak Valley Recreation Club of Ohio will sponsor a Northern Zone Trapshooting tournament on July 26-27. Competition will involve 100 16-yard targets, 100 handicap targets, 50 pair of double targets, 100 handicap targets and 25 pair of doubles. For more information, call 376-2711.

Junior Tackle physical

All boys interested in going out for Junior Tackle football are asked to have a physical completed before school begins.

Baseball attendance is up

By The Associated Press
Baseball owners are literally throwing money away this season in an all-out effort to lure fans into ballparks.

Along with such conventional gimmicks as bat, ball and glove days, there are such things as a "cash scramble" in Cleveland, a pass to Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., and a free car in Los Angeles.

The result has been a grand slam in attendance.

The 24 major league clubs have attracted 16,817,710 paying customers, a leap of 4.8 per cent and 800,000 persons for the same number of games at this point in 1974. If the trend continues in the second half of the season, the result would be a record attendance figure of 31 million in the major leagues.

With the help of that unique "cash scramble" brainchild, the Cleveland Indians have boosted attendance from 500,298 last year to 670,531 this season.

The Indians throw $2,000 on the field and turn some Designated Fans loose for 90 seconds, allowing them to keep all the money they can find. The Indians also have offered their fans fireworks displays and tight rope walkers along with such old standbys as bat night, beer night, stocking cap night, jacket day, camera day, jersey day and an oldtimers day.

The California Angels, up nearly 100,000 over last year's 600,000 crowd figure at the All-Star break, are the ones giving away a pass to Disneyland. The Angels' promotion include a package where ticket purchasers get admission to the ball park along with free rides to all Disneyland attractions after the game.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, perennial leaders in the attendance game, have drawn 1.5 million fans into their park—nearly 200,000 over last year.

GOING TWO ways at once, Cleveland second baseman Duane Kuiper leaps for a throw from the outfield as Baltimore batter Don Baylor (25) goes in for a stand-up double. The Orioles won 5-3.

The A's win big in dealing players

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
Baseball's open market — the preseason trading flurry — is a little like shooting craps in Las Vegas. "C'mon seven ... snake-eyes!"

Take the American League, for example. The Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians took their turn at the table and the dice came up snake-eyes.

The Oakland A's took their roll and, lo and behold, lucky seven. Like Vegas, Monte Carlo or the racetrack, some clubs came out ahead and others were big losers. But those who played it right, played it carefully, came out about even or slightly ahead — the Boston Red Sox, Milwaukee Brewers, New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles.

The Tigers wound up the 1973-74 season in last place in the AL Eastern Division and went to the trading block with gusto. They're still last in their division.

They dealt pitcher Woody Fryman to Montreal of the National League for catcher Terry Humphrey and pitcher Tom Walker. Humphrey, who's now out with a shoulder injury, has played in only 10 games and Walker has a 3-6 record. On the other hand, Fryman is 7-6 for the Expos with a respectable 3.07 earned run average.

Detroit also began Ed Brinkman's winding route to the Yankees by trading the shortstop to St. Louis through San Diego and getting first baseman Nate Colbert, Colbert, hitting around .150 and headed for what appeared to be a team strikeout record, then was sold to Montreal.

Cleveland, one game ahead of the Tigers at the All Star break, was in the market for fresh pitching, and they couldn't have started out worse. They gave up pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Bosman to Oakland for Blue Moon Odom, who wanted nothing to do with the Tribe. Finally Odom was traded to Atlanta for Roric Harrison, 4-2 with a 4.10 ERA.

In all, the Indians traded for pitchers Harrison, Jim Bibby, Jackie Brown, Don Hood and Dave LaRoche, "virtually our entire pitching staff," a spokesman said. But in the Hood deal, the Indians also got first baseman Boog Powell from the Baltimore Orioles, and that hasn't disappointed them.

Besides getting Jim Perry, 3-1 with Oakland, and Dick Bosman, 6-1 with the A's, from Cleveland, the Western Division leaders picked up pitchers Stan Bahnsen from the Chicago White Sox and Sonny Siebert from San Diego.

But the A's most significant trade may have been the one for designated hitter Billy Williams, which sent to the Chicago Cubs infielder Manny Trillo and relievers Bob Locker and Darold Knowles.

Williams has been in all but one of Oakland's games, has 44 RBI and 12 home runs.

The Red Sox, whose inexplicable slide at the end of last season dropped them from first to third in the AL East, stayed out of the market this year, making only a minor deal that sent veteran Tommy Harper — and his big salary — to California for utility man Bob Heise. And the Red Sox are back in first.

Milwaukee's most notable trade, of course, was the one that brought Hank Aaron back to County Stadium from Atlanta for Dave May who had an abysmal 1973-74 season for the Brewers and now is a Braves' backup.

The most even-up trade in the majors involved the Yankees, who went to the NL's San Francisco Giants to get Bobby Bonds for Bobby Murcer — All-Star for All-Star. Bonds is hitting only .238 but has 47 RBI, 20 homers and 16 stolen bases. Murcer is hitting .307 with 51 RBI and 10 homers.

Besides Bonds and Brinkman, the Yanks also got reserve catcher Ed Herrmann from the White Sox and outfielder Rich Coggins from the Expos on waivers.

Coggins came to the Yanks by way of Montreal. He started out the season with the Orioles, who unloaded Coggins, pitcher Dave McNally and minor leaguer Bill Kirkpatrick to the Expos for pitcher Mike Torrez and Ken Singleton in what turned out to be one of the most disastrous trades the NL made with the junior circuit.

Torrez is 9-5 with the Orioles and Manager Earl Weaver says he "should have a better record, but he's been the unfortunate guy with the bullpen letting a couple of games get away from him."

Singleton leads the club with a .298 batting average, 64 walks, and he has 24 RBI.

Montreal waived Coggins, McNally retired and Kirkpatrick is still a minor leaguer.

The California Angels only had one trade of note — the one with Boston — but it was a good one for them. Harper, the No. 3 base stealer among active players when the season began, is credited by the Angels with developing the club's strongest trait — its speed.

He's been coaching Mickey Rivers, Jerry Remy, Morris Nettles and Dave Collins with their baserunning. Rivers has 46 stolen bases, Remy 22, Nettles 22, Collins 11 in just one month with the Angels, and Harper has 17 himself.

Harper also is challenging for leading designated hitter honors with a .272 average.

Texas is the only other AL club that has done a significant amount of trading, sending Bibby and Brown to Cleveland for the other pitching Perry, Gaylord. The maneuver hasn't turned out particularly well for either club. Gaylord is 1-5 with the Rangers. Bibby is 4-9 and Brown 0-1 with a 5.25 ERA for Cleveland.

ALSO the Speedostat® speed control...

... holds you at gas-saving speeds — automatically

... keeps your speed down to safe, legal limits

EASY TO OPERATE

You just accelerate to a speed that's right for road and traffic conditions — press the Speedostat engagement button — take your foot off the accelerator and Speedostat takes over.

To slow down, use the brake as usual and Speedostat automatically disengages. To go faster than the set speed, step on the accelerator. The car returns to the set speed when you lift your foot off. You're always in command. And Speedostat cannot change a car's driving characteristics.

A resume feature of this Speedostat unit — effective if vehicle is going over 30 MPH, allows you your pre-set speed (after having slowed or stopped) by simply moving the Speedostat slide switch to the resume position momentarily and allowing Speedostat unit to take over.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-616: Harry D., aged 28, is an advertising man who serves as a Sunday School superintendent.
"Dr. Crane," he began, "We recently acquired a new minister for our pulpit in our Indianapolis suburb."
"He is 55 years old and a dignified speaker for us adults."
"But our previous clergyman included a five-minute children's sermonette at each church service."
"So our new pastor decided to follow the same plan."
"But he seems to lack the dramatic ability to interest kids."
"Although most of the children who come down to the chancel rail to hear his sermonette, are only 4 to 6 years old, he sermonizes to them instead of using a story-telling style."
"And he doesn't even sit down on the altar steps with them or cue his opening, as by saying, 'Boys and girls, I want to tell you an interesting story...'"

"The very first Sunday, he read them 18 verses of a Bible passage from one of St. Paul's epistles. Imagine!"
"Then he expounded in typical pulpit fashion, looking out over the heads of the youngsters to the adults in the pews."
"And even his vocabulary is way over their comprehension, for he talks about 'flunking out of school' to kiddies not even in kindergarten."
"Last Sunday he used this phrase 'beyond the shadow of a doubt' and what does that mean to toddlers and kindergarten-ers?"
"Dr. Crane, I've read your column avidly so I can't understand how any clergymen in Indianapolis could be so obtuse."
"He doesn't even use any stage materials, magical gimmicks or any other devices to attract the attention of those kiddies."
"If he were a hermit and had lived alone, like Robinson Crusoe, I could understand his lack of dramatic understanding."
"What's wrong with our seminaries when they turn out men so out of contact with the vocabulary level and dramatic interests of kiddies?"

Seminary Myopia
Alas, far too many seminary profs are afflicted with psychological myopia (near-sightedness).
The squander years trying to teach American prospective clergymen how to read a little Greek and Hebrew, yet don't equip them to employ effective English on adults or kiddies!
"It takes a livewire in the pulpit to electrify a congregation," I have long warned you faithful church members.
And that applies to the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths.
Even if a clergyman starts out as a poor speaker, he should learn the art of pulpit oratory just by watching his congregation.

That's how Dr. Peale, Dr. Bob Schuller, Billy Graham, Bishop Sheen, Rabbi Samuel Silver and hundreds of other topnotchers really became such superb platform psychologists. They were chiefly self-taught!

Our great orators soon saw that when they used local examples and current narrative stories, people leaned forward, but when the speakers shifted to philosophical stuff, the audience settled back in the pews.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Stay away from affairs of the heart. Concentrate on things where you use your head. You're much sharper in the business department.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You find it easy to make a buck today, but you could end up spending it quickly on something you need for the home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your head's in the clouds today. Be careful what you put in writing. You might make a romantic promise you don't intend to keep.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Do your work early, when you're fresh and creative. Later you'll be prone to make mistakes. Just take it easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You're in the mood for a good social time today. Don't overdo it and end on a sour note.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you plan some changes round the home, don't be dissuaded from following your own ideas. Others' advice will only cost you more money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Using friends for a sounding board for your ideas today is a mistake. Your thoughts are better. Others would throw you off the track.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You have a nose for a bargain today, but follow your instincts rather than those of someone who can't understand your reasoning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You'll have a good time with friends today. But since you're both extravagant and unlucky you could blow yesterday's winnings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
If you think you have good hunches today, follow them only after they pass the test of sound, logical reasoning.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
A casual acquaintance you're attracted to may not be all he appears to be. Don't be deceived. Stick to tried and true pals.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
The recognition you seek will not come from buttering up bigwigs, but from doing your job the best you can and expending extra effort.

A new job with added income this year could give you the means to improve or beautify your home. Guard against going overboard.

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 36 and have a goiter about the size of a small orange. I have had it since I was 20. Two years ago tests showed it was overactive, about as high as it could go. I was sent to a specialist, and he put me on propylthiouracil. I was taking six pills a day for awhile, but now I'm down to one pill a day.

The specialist said I shouldn't take these pills longer than 12 to 18 months as they cause some kind of anemia. My doctor doesn't think it should matter if I do. I have been taking the medicine for 20 months now.

I had tests taken last April and in December, and they both showed that my thyroid function is back to normal, and my doctor said I'm to stay on one pill a day. I am wondering if you think these pills are harmful to take for that length of time. Do these pills help to put on weight?

DEAR READER—You can have a goiter with normal thyroid function, low thyroid or overactive thyroid states.

The medicine you used is effective in slowing down an overactive thyroid, and the normal tests you have had over a period of time show that it works.

When a person with an overactive thyroid returns to normal function, there is often a tendency to gain weight, not from the medicine directly, but because the medicine cured the thyroid problem.

Patients with overactive thyroid states tend to eat a lot and not gain weight. That would be wonderful if it were not for all the other problems that go with the disease. When the thyroid function returns to normal the patient tends to follow the old eating habits, and they can add weight in a hurry.

Propylthiouracil may affect the production of white blood cells. The same is true of other pills used to treat overactive thyroids. The patient should be tested regularly to be sure the white cells formation is within normal limits. If it is too depressed the patient may be susceptible to serious infections.

It is common to stop the pills after the thyroid has returned to normal function. Sometimes the thyroid function remains normal, and in other instances the problem may recur after a while and treatment needs to be started again. While I have no firm opinion on whether you should stop the medicine or not, I do think you should be careful and have frequent checks of your white blood cells level as long as you are on such medicine.

Surgery certainly can be considered. You are young, and if you are in good health it might be a good approach. Each case has to be judged on its own peculiarities in such decisions.

Many goiters in normally functioning thyroid glands can be left alone, requiring no medicine or surgery. Some women prefer surgery simply for cosmetic purposes.

Thyroid goiters were once common, particularly in the central United States. Iodine deficiency was the main reason.
